BONI CASTELLANE TO SUE HEARST FOR HALF MILLION

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PARIS, Nov. 22.—Because of sensational articles appearing in the Hearst newspapers in America, which he says prevent him from mingling socially and diplomatically in European society, Count Boni de Castellane today decided to sue the American newspaper publisher for $500,000 for libel and misquoting his memoirs.

Count Boni asserts that his memoirs as he sold them to the Hearst papers comprised innocent and chatty articles on modern life. He asserts that he wrote them then, based on the articles, while artists illustrated them with wild and suggestive drawings.

Former Senator Hollis, Count Boni's lawyer, has assured his client that he will get a big verdict in New York.

RECOVER $100,000 CHICAGO BONDS IN CARPATHIANS

(Copyright 1923 by New York Times.)

PRAGUE, Nov. 22.—Bonds worth $100,000 lost on April 24, 1919, in the mail between Omaha and Chicago have been recovered in the Carpathian mountains.

The bonds, mailed by the Stockyards bank of Omaha to the Continental and Commercial bank of Chicago were traced to the Czech frontier.

Prague police seized the first $5,000 of the bonds when a peasant, Joseph Legner, tried to bank them. Legner declared he got them from a brother-in-law in the frontier finance control force, who had stolen them from a package bound from Omaha to Prague.

The thief kept them three years before he tried to convert them.

WOMAN BAILIFF SUSPENDED FOR OWNING CABARET

Mrs. Lucy Labriola, deputy bailiff in the Morris court, was suspended yesterday upon orders of Chief Justice Harry Olson pending investigation into charges of "fixing" of young women's cases in the court.

The judge declared he had no facts of corruption before him, but would investigate.

Mrs. Labriola was appointed to succeed her husband, Paul Labriola, who was killed in the old Nineteenth ward political feud war.

Mrs. Labriola continued to conduct her husband's place of business, a South Halsted street cabaret, after her appointment. It is her connection with this establishment which led to charges being made against her.

Deal with Widener May Revive Art Dispute.

New York, Nov. 22.—Prince Felix Youssouppoff, who is reported to have been the leader of a group of noblemen who slew Gregory Rasputin, the monk who, as confessor of the czar, was said to have exerted a considerable influence on the destinies of the empire, will arrive tomorrow on the Berengaria.

The prince, in the days before the revolution, was one of the wealthiest nobles in Russia.

He is 35 years old, the husband of Irene, daughter of Grand Duke Alexander, Michaelovitch and Grand Duchess Xenia, sister of the late czar Nicholas, and a member of the Romanoff family.

He is said to be one of the most extraordinary personalities of the Russian aristocracy.

LIQUOR ROBBER ARRESTED FOR MILLION THEFT

Securities Found in Dr. Brown's Homes.

Frank Miller, formerly a business agent of the Electricians' union, was arrested early this morning in connection with the $1,000,000 Werner Brothers storage warehouse robbery.

He was seized at Sunnyside and Kedzie avenues and brought to the detective bureau, where he was questioned.

The reasons for the arrest of Miller were not made public by the police. They declared, however, that Miller has a police record and is now under indictment for violation of the prohibition laws.

He was once arrested for breaking into the plant of the United States Industrial Alcohol company at 1700 Elston avenue and stealing 2,000 gallons of alcohol. Fifteen men were said to have been associated with Miller in this robbery.

Search Dr. Brown's Homes.

Earlier in the day a search of two of Dr. Spencer Brown's Lake county homes by Chicago police was a preparation for today's grand jury hearing on the Werner Brothers burglary.

That Dr. Brown, alleged "master mind" of the robbery, had at least four houses near Antioch besides his Chicago residence at 1617 North Wells street was discovered by the authorities.

In his home at Antioch $6,100 in war savings stamps was found. They were in three packages which bore the numbers 1455, 36515, and 36990. In pencil, on the wrappers, was written the following:

"N. G.," "N. N. G. G.," "Some will C. C."

Can't Deeper Them.

Granting that the "N. G." meant "no good," the detectives could not decipher the other meanings. The stamps appeared to have been steamed and washed. M. H. Kennedy, president of Werner Bros., said that no war savings stamps were taken in the burglary.

In a safety deposit box in the State Bank of Antioch was found a pearl necklace (whether real or paste not determined). In the receptacle there were also three packages of coins, $21.75 in Canadian quarters, and $7.50 in Canadian half dollars.

Their significance was only a matter for conjecture, but it was recalled that Charles Dean, pal of Dr. Brown, had been accused of participation in the Westminister bank robbery in Canada years ago, and has been sought for questioning in the present investigation.

Open More Boxes Today.

A marked advertisement was found in the Loon lake home of the prisoner, who is still held in $25,000 bonds. It read:

"One hundred thousand dollars will buy a beautiful ranch; townsite, J. P. Hyatt, Sweden, Duval County, Texas."

In addition it was learned that Brown had $5,000 on deposit in the Antioch bank and indications were that he had safety deposit boxes here in the Foreman Bros. bank and State Bank of Chicago.

It is planned to obtain authority to open them today.

Checked by Constable.

Search warrants had been obtained for the bank box, for Brown's house, and also for the Kelly cottage at Antioch, where it was thought Mrs. Brown was staying.

Constable Thompson of Antioch refused to let Sgt. Cartan and a private detective execute the search warrant at the Kelly home, but after a telephonic conversation with Chief Hughes, Cartan was directed to return and make an entry.

Attorney Eugene L. McGarry, who represents Brown, said that Mrs. Brown was not in the state. Chief Hughes said he was not seeking Mrs. Brown, but that if any of his men encountered her he had a few perfunctory questions to ask her. Whatever she might say could not be used as evidence against her husband, it was pointed out.

DATA BACK TO PETER THE GREAT.

Painted about 1600, the portrait, which art experts agree are superbly done and of great monetary and artistic value, came into the possession of the Youssouppoff family during the reign of Peter the Great.

For years they hung in the unlighted gallery of the family palace in Petrograd, viewed only upon order of the czar, until Prince Felix brought them out of Russia during the revolution.

Divorce for Mrs. Corey in Paris Court

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.) (Copyright 1923 by The Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, Nov. 22.—(Tribune Radio.)—Mabelle Gilman Corey was granted a divorce today by a Paris court from her husband, William E. Corey, millionaire American steel king, from whom she has been separated for several months.

Mrs. Corey formerly was an actress on the American stage.

The sudden announcement of the divorce coming on the heels of the hearing of the case of Mrs. Corey's chauffeur and housekeeper, charged with stealing a 1,000,000 franc (about $50,000) rope of pearls and other jewels last summer, has confirmed suspicions in the American colony in Paris as well as the belief of the police that hidden facts prevented the mystery from being cleared up.

Claims She Was Deserted.

Friends of the couple believed that the theft and complications which followed were responsible for Mrs. Corey's recent return to Europe and that a reconciliation had been effected.

The divorce complaint, however, states that Mr. Corey deserted his wife, who was staying at their magnificent chateau at Villagelos, a suburb of Paris, and returned to America.

When Mr. Corey returned to France he did not rejoin her, but continued to amuse himself elsewhere, the complaint states.

Mrs. Corey could not be found at her Paris address, and at the Villagelos chateau it was stated that Mr. Corey has left France for parts unknown.

The trial of the chauffeur and housekeeper comes up tomorrow.

COREY MARRIED TWICE.

New York, Nov. 22.—(Special.)—Mabelle Gilman, who divorced William E. Corey in Paris, was one of the toast of Broadway in the late thirties, having come to New York from California. She is now about 41.

She was "discovered" by Augustin Daly and her first hit was in "The Runaway Girl," which Daly produced in 1897. The same season she sang in "The Gaiety," another Daly production.

It was ten years after Miss Gilman was first started that she married Corey, a "self-made" millionaire from the Pennsylvania coal fields.

Corey had started as a miner. He was making $40 a month when he met and married Laura Cook, a girl of his own station in life. He was ambitious and his wife helped him climb the ladder to riches.

Drifted From Family.

But while Corey was broadening, his wife was occupied with her household duties and with the problems of raising the children she had borne him. Corey gradually drifted away from his family.

At this period he met Miss Gilman and determined to marry her. He asked his wife to obtain a divorce and, although she still loved him, she agreed. In 1907, a few days after the divorce was granted, Corey married the actress.

During the war Mrs. Corey fitted Villa Villagelos, her magnificent estate near Paris, as a war hospital and turned it over to the French government. She acted as a nurse during the war.

Chicago to Get National Convention, Upham Says

New York, Nov. 22.—The Republican national convention next year will be held in Chicago, according to Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee, Mr. Upham gave this as his opinion after a conference today with Charles D. Hillen, Republican national committeeman from New York.

PEKING, Nov. 22.—Meager details are being received here regarding a severe earthquake in a remote section of Szechwan province in which 1,500 were killed at Kaolan, 200 miles northwest of Yunnanfu, the capital of the province. It is stated that a wide area was damaged owing to the seriousness of the shock, which occurred at 3:30 p. m. on Nov. 12.

ROUT JUNKERS, RAID CROPS AND BATTLE POLICE

Stresemann Faces End of Rule Today.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.) (Copyright 1923 by The Chicago Tribune.)

BERLIN, Nov. 23, 2 a. m.—Germany this morning is in the throes of another of those national relapses which seem to precede the end. A careful survey shows that the Stresemann government will fall before another sundown.

In Upper Silesia the starving unemployed, issuing from villages, towns, and cities in organized bands, are plundering the hoarded crops of the junkers and burning the rich estates. The junkers and their armed farmhands are in flight. Many on both sides have been killed. Despair pervades Berlin.

Tribune reports from its correspondent in German Silesia say the sky is aflame with the reflection of thousands of burning farmhouses and barns. In the lurid light of this vast fire which is licking up into flames and smoke the fairest fields in Germany are the innumerable bands of unemployed are still plundering the smoking houses and are driving off cattle.

Fire on Looters.

Along the roads the rifles of the police are spitting fire and lead at the continuous processions of plunderers moving towards the towns with their booty.

The Silesian landowner, or farm association, which is intensely nationalist, declared a food boycott at Breslau last night against all towns in Silesia until Chancellor Stresemann and his cabinet resign. Immediately the town dwellers, particularly the unemployed, met this challenge with fire, the only weapon left to them. They began their operations yesterday morning.

The proud establishments of scores of junkers and farmers are only ashes tonight.

Stream From Cities.

From the towns of Womdorf, Jauer, Wiegantz, and Brieg particularly the unemployed angrily streamed into the countryside.

A few frightened lonely farmers who surrendered all their food and all their cattle without a fight were not disturbed. At the big junker estates armed farmhands tried to fight off the invaders, but the latter burned one farm building after another. Houses were plundered and everything taken, valuables as well as food. Scores were killed.

Tonight these bands are still burning and plundering lonely estates, but the junkers and police gradually are forming columns against the incendiaries.

At Waldenburg troops clashed with returning bandits and plunderers, killing one and wounding sixteen. The police suffered one death.

Bitter Against Towns.

These stony hearted junkers, who are mostly country squires with big estates, say with the landowners in other German states that they cannot support Chancellor Stresemann because he lacks public confidence and must be replaced by a nationalist government, in which they would participate. All the big German farmers and most of the smaller farmers are nationalist and monarchist.

These farmers bitterly are opposed to the towns, where there are strong Socialist factions supporting Chancellor Stresemann.

These landbunds have been fighting Chancellor Stresemann continuously by withholding their foodstuffs, thereby causing starvation and dissatisfaction, which directs itself against the government.

If a nationalistic government came into power these landbunds could throw ample quantities of foodstuffs to support the government, and that is what they are planning to do.

They are not willing to sacrifice their foodstuffs for paper marks for Chancellor Stresemann, but they will do so for a nationalistic government.

The landbunds can provide complete rations, potatoes and cereals, for every one in Germany until the end of March, if they wish.

DOOM OF STRESEMANN

The doom of the Stresemann cabinet apparently is sealed.

Deputy Reichstag leader, Dr. Dietrich, told the Reichstag last night that the Socialist party, which has 133 votes in the Reichstag, will vote against the Chancellor today.

"Chancellor Stresemann made an interesting speech this afternoon, but it is too late to save the situation with a speech," Herr Dietrich added.

The Socialist party decided to introduce into the Reichstag today the following resolution:

"The government has proclaimed a state of emergency in Saxony and Thuringia, although conditions did not warrant such a measure. On the other hand, nothing decisive was done regarding the unconstitutional situation in Bavaria. The government, therefore, does not enjoy the confidence of the Reichstag."

Reply from Stresemann.

This decision was communicated at 11:30 o'clock tonight to Chancellor Stresemann, who replied that he would ask a vote of confidence, which will take precedence over the party motions. He will resign immediately if he does not get a vote of confidence.

The opposition of the Socialists, German nationalists, and Bavarian communists is expected to give 230 votes, with a majority of from 40 to 50.

President Ebert is expected to ask Dr. Dietrich, who was minister of justice in the Ebert cabinet, to succeed Chancellor Stresemann and to form a nonpolitical cabinet today.

Dr. Dietrich was a former judge in his native town of Dresden, and like Chancellor Stresemann, is a member of the German People's party. He has a neutral personality and his cabinet would only be provisional.

Without a Hahn.

There is no national leader tonight who knows what the future will bring or who is strong enough to take up the burden of government. "A dictatorship and fascist government," is the nationalist cry, but he one will consent to a dictatorship outside his own party.

Many short men believe the power of Gen. von Seeckt and make him dictator of Germany, but Gen. von Seeckt's two most prominent dictatorial decrees failed utterly.

The printers' strike was broken through economic necessity rather than through demands that the printers return to work. The dance halls and restaurants which he demanded throw their doors open to the poor will operate as fashionable restaurants and home joints.

Aside from Gen. von Seeckt there is

PILOT IN MAIL PLANE TALKS TO FLYING FIELD A MILE BELOW HIM

North Platte, Neb., Nov. 23.—Broadening from an airplane more than 2,000 feet in the air above midcontinent in an effort to ascertain the distance possible to make messages heard under practical flying conditions of the air mail service, Pilot Jack Knight flew over North Platte tonight, completing a day of remarkable tests.

Messages broadcast tonight by Pilot Knight were in line with experimental work being conducted by the United States air mail service with a view to further perfecting means of fitting air mail planes with sending and receiving apparatus to keep in constant touch with the ground while en route from field to field.

At ten minute intervals, starting at 8:05 o'clock tonight, Pilot Knight spoke into his radio telephone apparatus. From 9:30 he spoke at intervals of two minutes.

no outstanding figure in Germany.

The situation gives the monarchists the chance for which they long have been working. It remains to be seen whether they can take advantage of it and bring back an autocracy.

The Socialist party, their combination with the nationalists to break Herr Stresemann makes for their decline as a powerful party, and it may be years before they recover their strength.

Stresemann's Last Stand.

Forseeing the rocks ahead of him, Chancellor Stresemann made his last desperate effort in a speech in the Reichstag today to avert the wreck of his government. It was the topnotch of his career. It seemed for a time that his logic and eloquence would win the number house. He answered numerous interruptions from the right and left as if they formed part of his discourse.

The Chancellor capped his strategy by placing Finance Minister Luther on the tribune to unfold the government's financial policy before bringing the question of confidence to a vote.

Chancellor Stresemann, in his two-fisted fighting style so well known to his political opponents, opened his speech by saying that he was forced to defend himself from attacks from both the right and left.

Demand Immediate Vote.

"The government does not deny the right of parliament for a vote of confidence or no confidence," he declared, "and has no intention to avoid a decision. To the contrary, the government demands an immediate decision because it must have the situation before parliament and the cabinet clarified."

The French prime minister declares in a note to the German government that he fears an extension of the right radical movement. I will not deny that the developments in Germany are directed to the extreme right and left. The cause of this development are clear. Had Premier Poincare honestly desired a stable German government he had ample opportunity to reinforce the German republic, but he has never done so. Need and starvation are driving the people to extremes. The Communists are supported by staffs and the Nationalists by the support of the German national policies by France."

Turning to the Nationalist leaders, Chancellor Stresemann said:

"The internal situation in Germany is hopeless and I must openly say that I see no way out."

Turning to the communists, he said:

"If you know the way, show it."

To German-Americans.

Chancellor Stresemann launched in to an explanation of the industrial negotiations with France, defending them because "every opportunity must be used. Germany owes thanks to all nations who tried to help, including Scandinavia, the United States, and the South American states, especially the Germans in America."

"But foreign help alone cannot bring a solution. Germany can only be restored by its own power. However, we must repudiate charges that the German government has not the right to ask foreign aid. We must do this. France itself gives best proof that Germany must appeal to foreign peoples. We surrendered the heavy resistance, accepted all instructions given our officials, and declared several times that we were ready to negotiate, but without results. It is an open scandal in the relations between free peoples."

"For this reason we have been obliged to ask portions of the population to begin negotiations for themselves. This was the dark negotiations between the industrialists and the French."

Chancellor Stresemann intimated that the French had offered to make conditions so a resumption of work would be possible in the Ruhr and Rhineland, if Germany would sign agreements giving France advantages over the other allies.

Defense of Policies.

Chancellor Stresemann then launched into a long defense on his internal policies, explaining his action on Bavaria and Saxony and saying that it was still impossible to lift the state of siege.

"If northern Germany remained quiet during the recent events in Bavaria and Saxony and saying that it was still impossible to lift the state of siege."

"The most important topic of currency reform. He pledged the reform as quickly as possible."

"The Renten mark is only temporary," he said. "We will establish a gold bank issue of gold notes, but three or four months are needed. The cabinet requires foreign help. A great part of the newspaper print reports regarding loans which are untrue. They hinge on an offer made by a group of foreign financiers through the president of the German Real Estate society."

A Foreign Loan.

"Others say that a financial group is ready to give the government a currency credit of at least 1,000,000,000 gold marks ($150,000,000) and call upon the German government to open negotiations in this matter. Foreign financiers made a condition that this credit would be given only if the cabinet remains."

"If the nationalists believe a Fascist government like the Italian would make a good impression abroad, let them regard this," he continued. "Of course, if the government is overthrown it will make all efforts to bring a similar offer to its successor, but I have explained the situation as it exists."

"After we lost the war we lost peace. Now we begin liquidation, and only now do we see all the possibilities. The policy of France condemns Germany to perpetual slavery. We have only one arm against them—solidarity."

"It is a pity that the great coalition was overthrown, but at this moment we must choose between the right and left."

No Favors to France.

"We could not sign any agreement agreeing on the Ruhr occupation. This would be a disaster to the other allies because France is not the only creditor of Germany. It would be a disaster to the German government to sign any treaty amounting to France getting payments alone. The German government cannot consent that the German payments be made in favor of another which is accused by the other allies of wrongfully occupying the Ruhr."

Speaking of the financial position, Chancellor Stresemann said:

"Germany must balance its budget. Every measure to this end must be taken, even if impossible without brutally against some individuals. The Socialists attack the government, declaring it has the intention to abandon the night hour day. I tell you openly that the question of the working day must be settled very quickly, because a restoration of our economic life is impossible without a settlement of the problem. It is untrue that an extension of the working time would increase the number of jobs. We must get the confidence of foreign peoples once more."

"We are attacked because we do not have a strong position, the Rhine and Ruhr support."

"What's Stinner's Role?"

The communists again interrupted with cries about Hugo Stinner.

"What is Herr Stinner to me?" replied the Chancellor. "Never have I taken regard of Herr Stinner, and never will. He is not the leader of the party, but I suspect. If you do not want to work, we never will build up the country."

"Herr Haack declared that our people were not yet ripe for the parliamentary system of government. This is not true. The parliamentary system in Germany shows all the signs of childhood illness. Possibly it needs correction, but it cannot be given up. Who would avoid a fatal war and chaos must accept the policy of responsibility to the people."

Revenge Back Act, Springer Ho

Springer, called in by the police, made an unbiased examination, and in declaring that no medical practitioner could have performed the operation.

"It was a bungling job," he reported. "Although a knife was used, it was not handled by a surgeon. Reven was clearly the motive, for it was impossible to transplant a gland successfully after such an operation."

"I feel sure that a thorough search of the police, where the boy found himself when he recovered from the chloroform fumes, will confirm this," Springer added.

Immediately following the interview in Reven's room, Lieut. Grady ordered the boy to take a taxi drive known as "Red" Carrigan into custody.

"Find 'Red' Carrigan," the youth victim told him. "He threatened that he'd get me, and I'm sure he knows a lot about this business."

Silent "Booked" Two Charges.

Reven's statement and the Springfield findings came as an unlooked-for climax to a day which was earlier featured by the preferring of formal charges against Earl English, 19 year old University of Chicago student, whom detectives arrested Tuesday morning. The charges were mayhem and perjury, the latter growing out of English's alleged admission that he acted as an election clerk two weeks ago at a time when a vote despite his age only 19.

The young student was booked at Attorney Mitchell Dawson appears before Judge Charles A. McDonald with a writ of habeas corpus. The jury returned Lieut. Grady that unless charges had been placed by 4 o'clock he would order his release.

Saw Him with Sister.

Reven admitted that several nights ago he went into the room of English, 11 year old sister, Eleanor. Lieut. Grady said, "The girl was in her room, and her brother saw Reven with her. Although they were counting down living in the same house, Reven was not very cordial towards Reven."

In the latter's room at the hospital was a box of candy with a note from Eleanor English.

"How you want to get, I sure am sorry to hear about you," the note began. "I'll be out this afternoon. Pretty soon they'll let us come to see you. Keep your spirits up, love."

Reven, still in ignorance of his actual condition, appeared cheerful as he talked to his official visitors about his heart with "Red" Carrigan. Less than three weeks ago, he told Grady, he and "Red" parked their car outside a roadhouse on the southwest side. A passenger jumped into the latter's car, but "Red" was forced to leave him because Reven would not give him enough gasoline to make the trip into town. A quarrel followed, Reven said, and "Red" threatened to get even.

DIVORCES STEEL MILLIONAIRE

Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey.

William E. Corey.

Mrs. Corey, former New York actress, gets divorce in Paris on grounds of desertion.

ERRING GIRL'S FIANCE SAVES HER FROM CELL

Agrees to Marry Her and Judge O. K.'s It.

The stern heart of Judge Harry E. Lewis of the Criminal court softened for a few minutes yesterday, and instead of sending a young woman to the penitentiary for one year on a robbery charge he sentenced her to "life imprisonment" as the wife of the man she was engaged to marry before she fell into the clutches of the law.

The girl is Miss Marie Du Bois, 19 years old, formerly of New Orleans (TRIBUNE Photo.) and recently the alleged companion of three bandits. The four were brought before Judge Lewis on a plea of guilty to robbing Mrs. Madge Goldberg, 8844 Ridgeland avenue. The man, Angelo Strassman, George Benetti, and Robert Brown, were sent to Joliet penitentiary for from one to ten years. After they were led from the court room the judge turned to the girl.

"What are the charges against this defendant?" he asked of Assistant State's Attorney Berthold A. Cronson. "This girl was arrested in company with the three men," replied Prosecutor Cronson. "I do not believe she was entirely guilty of the charge of robbery, however."

Judge Lewis asked if a year in jail would be sufficient punishment, and Cronson said it would. He added he believed she would be punished sufficiently if she were placed on probation for a year.

"But who will stand good for her if she is placed on probation?" asked the judge.

"Her fiancé appears."

"I will, your honor," said a man in front of the bar. "My name is Edward Pavlak and I am a fireman. I am engaged to marry Miss Du Bois. If you will let her out on probation, we will get married and I will see she goes straight from now on."

The judge agreed, and Pavlak took Miss Du Bois to the home of his mother, where she will remain, until the marriage, which, both said, will take place within a few days.

FRANCE JUMPS POINCARÉ FOR BRITISH VICTORY

German Finance Experts Arrive in Paris.

BY HENRY WALES.
(Chicago Tribune Service.)
[Copyright, 1933, By The Chicago Tribune.]
Premier Poincaré will face a number of antagonistic interpreters in the chamber of deputies tomorrow when he has agreed to discuss his foreign policy and answer questions on the Ruhr and reparations problems. It is expected that the premier will be attacked bitterly for the sacrifices he made in the two notes which the council of ambassadors sent to Germany, as the opposition press this morning criticized him violently for giving way to London and Berlin. Best opinion, however, agrees that there is no danger of the cabinet being overthrown tomorrow.

The notes in question concern the status of former Crown Prince Fredrick William of Germany and the resumption of the duties of a full military control mission in Germany.

German experts, headed by Herr Fischer and Dr. Mayke, arrived today from Berlin to appear before the reparations commission tomorrow morning to explain Germany's financial and economic condition and to point out that Germany cannot pay installments on reparations.

The Tribune learns that the Germans will insist that Germany will appoint a moratorium of at least five years, but they will offer guarantees in the form of obtaining credits and loans in America, England, and neutral countries, and from private banking syndicates if the reparations problem is put on a round basis.

Belgians Send Ultimatum.
BRUSSELS, Nov. 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Belgium, not having received a reply to its last demand on the Berlin government for indemnity for the assassination of Lieut. Graf near Dueseldorf early last year, has notified Germany that if the sum due is not paid by Sunday, it will secure payment in occupied Germany. The necessary orders already have been given to this effect.

Lieut. Graf was shot while riding in a street car between Ruhrort and Walsum. His slayers pleaded mistaken identity.

TWO BONDSMEN JUDGE TRAPPED GET YEAR IN JAIL

Harry Morris and John Polak, well known professional bondsmen, were sentenced to serve a year each in the county jail by a jury which last night found them guilty of conspiring in obtaining release from the jail of a confessed bandit on a worthless bond.

As the two men were being led from the courtroom of Judge Harry Lewis, the animosity which has existed between the two during the week of the trial flamed out and they sought to strike each other, but were separated by court attendants and led to cells.

The two men tore from the grasp of their guards and clinched. Assistant State's Attorney William W. Smith and several deputies separated the pair before injury could be done. Then they were led to cells in the jail.

The men were arrested by Municipal Judge Francis Borelli several months ago after the judge had followed them for two days. They had a short time before induced him to induce a bond for the release of George Holmes, confessed gunman, from the jail. Investigation proved the bond to be worthless and Judge Borelli set out in search of the two men.

STOLE CHILD TO FORCE DIVORCE, WIFE CHARGES

Theft of a 2 year old child to force its mother, Mrs. Mabel Boyer, 4455 North Maplewood avenue, to consent to divorce, was charged by Mrs. Boyer against her husband, Harvey L. Boyer, wealthy realtor and grain broker, in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed yesterday in Superior court by Attorney Cameron Tatter.

Named as co-conspirators in the alleged kidnapping are Mrs. Margaret P. Mattison, 2616 Lake View avenue, Boyer's sister, and his mother, Mrs. Annie E. Boyer.

Terminating Boyer a "drunkard, a libertine, notoriously dishonest," Mrs. Boyer insisted the child, Dorothy, would suffer in his custody, and demanded her return.

Threats to kidnap Dorothy finally culminated last Wednesday, when, according to the petition, Boyer and Mrs. Mattison forcibly entered the home of Mrs. Boyer's mother, where she lived with the baby, and wrenched the child from her arms.

Since the petition states, Boyer, his mother and sister have kept the child concealed. Superior Judge Michael J. McKinley issued the writ and set the case for hearing today.

FIGURES SHOW CHICAGO IS FOND OF WINE'S "KICK"

12,500,000 Gallons Made in Homes This Year.

This is the second of a series of articles by Mr. Evans dealing with present conditions under the eighth amendment and the Volstead act.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Here are a few estimates indicating the phenomenal growth of wine making as a household industry in Chicago.

During the 1923 season the amount of wine made in the city will probably reach an aggregate of 12,500,000 gallons.

About twenty gallons for every family in Chicago is what it averages, or about four and one-half gallons for every man, woman, and child in the city.

Between 975,000 and 1,000,000 families out of a total of 1,500,000 either make home made wine or obtain wine made by other householders.

What 12,500,000 gallons of home made wine means relatively may be gathered to some extent from the fact that in 1914, the pre-war year, the total consumption of wines in the United States was not more than 53,000,000 gallons, or a trifle over half a gallon per capita.

Based on Grape Statistics.

These estimates undoubtedly may startle or shock a good many people, but to the writer they appear to be quite conservative. They are based upon government reports of the volume of grapes marketed and upon non-statistical data gathered from the variety of men in close touch with districts of all types in the city.

The moment the inquirer tries to take a statistical elan at the family wine industry, the figures have a tendency to run wild and the curb has to be used continually—the result is that the estimates probably overstate the situation more than overstate it.

This season saw a bumper grape harvest and shipments to Chicago from Michigan, California, New York, and Ohio made a great jump. The federal bureau of markets estimates that carlots arriving in the city will total 12,500 for the year, as compared with 5,500 last year. Back in 1919, in pre-Volstead times, the total was 4,000 car lots.

4,000 Cars Used in Chicago.

Approximately one-half the grapes arriving in Chicago are consumed in the city, according to the bureau's estimate. On this basis, about 4,250 carloads will be the total grape consumption in Chicago this year, as against 4,450 cars in 1922.

Not more than 10 per cent of the grapes sold in Chicago are used on the table. This is the estimate of the federal bureau of experts in South Water street and of large retailers. The summer saw plenty of indications of this in the markets. For example, New York Concord were hard to get in the fruit stores. The reason given is that they are an unusually fine wine grape and were grabbed up in bulk lots.

The remaining 90 per cent of the crop, or 3,825 cars, were used in the manufacture of jams, preserves, jellies, unfermented grape juices, and wine. In bottling this, the experts say at least 70 per cent went into wine and not more than 30 per cent into jams, jellies, and other products. They say this is a conservative estimate.

An average vineyard of grapes will yield from 2,000 to 3,000 gallons of fruit juice, according to various estimates from grape handlers, the yield depending on the grape itself and upon the method followed by the domestic winemaker. Some get a gallon from every ten pounds of Michigan grapes and from every eight pounds of California.

Every winemaker seems to have his own figure on juice yield, and they vary widely. If 3,257 carloads went into wine, according to the estimates, and the average yield a car was 3,000 gallons, it would mean a total of 11,800,000 gallons.

Larger Quantities by Truck.

On top of all this is a vast quantity of grapes brought in by truck from the Michigan vineyards and even from Ohio by individuals who bought their grapes by the ton on the spot. Nearly 1,500,000 gallons are figured from that source. Also to be considered is the unfermented grape juice which is being sold all over town, which many are turning into wine by letting nature take its course.

Raspberries, cherries, blackberries, currants, prunes, dandelions, even beets, all of which have their devotees, add to the vinous total, until some declare that 15,000,000 gallons of home-made wine this year in Chicago is not stretching it a bit. So 12,500,000 gallons seems to be middle ground.

Approaching the subject from another angle, the situation in Chicago was gone over by typical districts with men in close touch through politics or business. In some foreign sections, filled with a population from a European country in which wine making is an ancient and staple industry, like Italy; for instance, nine families out of ten, according to men supposedly in the know, are turning grapes into wine.

In other sections, "moon" is the word. In the testimony from these sources together and sending it through the filter, the opinion among these lay authorities is that in say 10 per cent of Chicago's families are making wine at home or are using wine made by others to too low a figure; 60 per cent is conservative; 70 per cent is probable. On this basis between 370,000 and 420,000 families in Chicago are interested in home wine making.

How It Runs For Family.

The average domestic experimenter is probably making about thirty gallons. Many run fifty gallons, and there is much ground for the belief that many makers even reach the 100 gallon mark, and beyond. Beginners often start with twenty gallons. At thirty gallons average it would mean a total of 11,000,000 to 12,500,000 gallons this year.

What seems to have happened is that domestic drinking in Chicago, outside of "hooch" and "moon," has been put on a wine basis. While everybody has been talking about hooch, gins and moonshiners and blacking and raids and such things, Bacchus himself has gone into the family circle and home-made beverages with a "kick" have taken the place of what used to be bought over the bar. The light wine era is already here, brought about by the expansion of wine making as a household art.

[In the next article Mr. Evans will discuss other phases of post-prohibition.]

DRYS TO SNIFF BADGERS' RAHS AT GRID GAME

Local prohibition agents were scratching their heads perplexedly last night over one of the toughest assignments given them since the country was Volsteaded. Cooperating with the federal authorities from Madison, Wis., they are to disguise themselves tomorrow as students of the University of Wisconsin and sniff the Badgers' "Urah-rah" as they float across Stagg field. If there be any alcoholic "rahs" among them, was to the students found carrying their college spirits in hip flasks.

For the word has traveled along the federal grapevine that Wisconsin students have been drinking. The rumor reached Dr. E. E. Goodnight, dean of the university, after the near riot which marked the homecoming game with Michigan at Madison last Saturday.

The dean admitted yesterday he had been conducting a private investigation among the rooming houses in Madison in which students reside.

The Madison police, according to Associated Press dispatches from that city, admitted the town had been far from arid during the homecoming celebration but blamed the meltdowns on visitors from Milwaukee and Chicago.

BELGIAN ENVOY BOOMS CHICAGO AS U. S. CAPITAL

Baron F. de Cartier de Marchienne, Belgian ambassador to the United States, who spent yesterday in the city, thinks Chicago "so superb" she ought to be the nation's capital.

Referring to discuss Chicago weather instead of the European situation, he expressed himself satisfied with the reconstruction work now going on in Belgium and predicted that within a short time that country "will have its place in the sun once more."

Following a luncheon at the Chicago club, the ambassador was escorted about the city by a committee including Dr. Cyrille Vermeeren, Belgian consul; J. Van Thiel, chancellor of the Belgian consulate; Fernand Anseau of the Chicago Civic Opera company; Attorney Felix J. Straykowski, and the Rev. Julius de Vos.

The ambassador was guest of honor in the afternoon at a reception given by Mrs. Samuel Sheffield Hutchinson of 6231 Sheridan road, former president of the relief for Belgian prisoners in Germany.

BLAMES ROAD, UNION HEADS FOR RAILWAY STRIKE

Both the carrier and union officials were yesterday held responsible for the United States railroad labor force disputes leading to the present strike of engineers and firemen on the Virginian railway.

The issue involved the discharge of twelve employees, some of them as a result of their conduct during the shopmen's strike in 1922. The labor board ordered that even if they were reinstated without pay and three with pay, and two were denied reinstatement. The decision in the respective cases was determined by conditions under which the employees left the service of the carrier.

Close High Schools for Conference of Teachers

All high schools will be closed today to allow the teachers to attend the semester conference of high school principals and teachers at Lake View high school. More than 1,500 teachers are expected to attend the session.

Supt. Mortenson and Dr. Elbert K. Fretwell of Columbia university will be the speakers. Most of the day will be devoted to conferences.

ALTON SHOPMEN WIN POINT OVER COMPANY UNION

Another United States railroad labor board decision placing company unions formed since the shopmen's strike of last year on the defensive was reported last night. It was hailed by federated shop crafts officials as a victory.

The decision involves the Chicago and Alton shopmen's claim that their committee is eligible to negotiate in disputes with the road as a unit of the federated shop crafts, which directed the shopmen's strike of 1922.

While not conceding this in full the labor board, it is understood, held that if the carrier has any doubt as to whether this union has the sanction of a majority of employees an election should be conducted.

Many of the Alton shopmen participated in the 1922 strike. About a year ago they were reinstated with seniority rights second to those who had remained on the job, as well as those taken on during the walkout. During their absence a company union was formed and this organization named a committee to deal with the carrier.

The labor board held this committee was not elected as the federated shop crafts, but that the employees might raise the issue for an election.

TWAS SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY AND NOT A KIDNAPING

South Rises to Dispute
Chicaguan's Tale.

Everett Putnam Leonard, a man who came from Chattanooga, refused to admit at the detective bureau to the charge that he and an associate, W. J. Ward, had kidnapped and held a Chicago merchant, a Chicagoan in their Chattanooga home for twenty days.

Leonard, however, revealed from Chattanooga, how these dispatches assert that the Chicagoan was not a prisoner, but a guest during those twenty-six days in Leonard's home. They also declared that Leonard, on his latest excursion to Chicago, left the southern city "in a desperate mood" because he was "financially bankrupted" through business dealings with the Chicagoan.

Two Triple Charge Today.

Leonard and his son this morning in the South Clark street court must face charges of kidnapping, assault with a deadly weapon, and carrying concealed weapons. They were arrested Tuesday when Leonard, from his home at 309 South La Salle street, called the detective bureau, told the story of the kidnapping, and said the Leonard again were watching for him.

The older Leonard's only statement was that he had employed Leonard and would attempt to prove he was justified in coming armed to Chicago to deal with Leonard, who is president of the Santa Fe Products company. He had previously said Leonard had him $9,000 and he had come to collect it.

Guest, Not Prisoner.

Mountain business men in Chattanooga, as well as Leonard's own secretary, Miss Ida Phiffer, were branding Leonard's story as a "hoax" and saying he was being held prisoner. Leonard was a guest of the Leonard's, the merchants declared; he frequently went out from the Leonard home alone at night, via business men, and at least twice was invited to hotels there for the night.

Among those who told of his moves were C. W. Howard, president of the Chattanooga chamber of commerce, and E. T. Chalmers, president of the American Trust and Savings bank. They said Leonard was apparently free and easy and "certainly was not" a prisoner, "at all times accompanied by one or the other of the Leonard's."

No Capture, Says Secretary.

Miss Ida Phiffer, Leonard's secretary, who is still in Chattanooga, denied her employer had been a prisoner, but admitted he was in fear of violence from Leonard.

"Did Mr. Leonard, to your knowledge, ever go about town without the Leonard's with him?" she was asked.

"Why, yes," she answered. "He was downtown alone frequently."

"Did Mr. Leonard ever say anything to you that might lead you to believe he had been threatened with bodily harm or was in fear of Leonard?"

"I can't say I mean I don't know how to answer that."

"Well, was he afraid of Leonard?"

"He may have been. I'm not sure. I do not ask me any more questions as my position here is a delicate one."

Just Southern Hospitality.

Mrs. Leonard, wife of the older Leonard, also made a statement.

"Why," she said, "Mr. Leonard was a guest in our home. He was at all times at liberty to leave."

She declined to comment on her husband's trip to Chicago with pistols and revolvers. She said, however, that Leonard and his son left for Chicago on a business trip and that Leonard had failed to live up to a promise to pay money he owed her husband.

Statements of the business men and Mrs. Leonard were investigated by the Chattanooga police and found to be correct. The Chattanooga dispatches state that Leonard's statements of agreement of a point of a revolver were questioned. One of these, an agreement not

WAS SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY AND NOT A KIDNAPING

South Rises to Dispute Chicagoan's Tale.

Several Putnam Leonard, a manufacturer from Chattanooga, refused to answer the charge that he and his wife had kidnapped and held a Chicago merchant, a Chicagoan's tale.

Leonard's side of the story. These dispatches assert that Leonard was not a kidnaper, but a guest of the Chicagoan's, who had been kidnapped by Leonard's wife. They also declared that Leonard's latest excursion to Chicago was a "business" trip, and that he had been employed by the Chicagoan's.

First Charge Today.

Leonard and his son this morning in South Clark street court must answer the charge of kidnapping, assault with a deadly weapon, and carrying a dangerous weapon. They were arrested yesterday when Naylor, from his home at 500 South La Salle street, told the detective bureau, told the court of the kidnapping, and said the Chicagoan's wife was watching for him.

Businessmen men in Chattanooga, as well as Naylor's own secretary, Mrs. Ida Philter, were branding Leonard as a kidnaper. Naylor's wife, who was held prisoner, Naylor was a partner in the Leonard, the merchant, who frequently went out from Leonard home alone at night, visited his wife, and at least twice a week at hotels there for the night. U. S. PROSPERITY MAY BE COSTLY TO RAILROADS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—With prosperity restored, the United States will require in the next decade a vast expansion of transportation facilities which will cost the railroads not less than $7,500,000,000, according to a survey of the transportation problems issued today by the chamber of commerce of the United States.

It is estimated that in the next ten years there will be a 35 per cent increase in passenger traffic and 25 per cent in freight traffic on the railroads alone.

No further legislation by congress is necessary to enable the railroads to meet these demands and finance the expansion, in the opinion of the chamber.

Although there is strong sentiment in congress in favor of the repeal of Section 15-A, the rate fixing and reasonable return section of the Cummins-Esch transportation act, the chamber representing organized business says "congress should be urged to make no change in any important provision of the transportation act until it has had a fair trial."

Cooperation Is Necessary.

This stupendous extension of transportation facilities can be achieved, the chamber asserts by co-operation of administrative agencies of the government, the carriers, and the public.

The estimated growth of passenger traffic will be from 40,000,000,000 passenger miles in 1923 to 50,000,000,000 in 1933, and of freight traffic from 420,000,000,000 revenue ton miles to 560,000,000,000. To handle this increased traffic the railroads must add to their present equipment in the next decade 55,35 miles of track, 13,200 locomotives, 725,000 freight cars and 13,000 passenger cars.

This estimated increase in capital expenditure, the chamber explains, "will provide only for the additional facilities needed for the probable increase in business. It also will be necessary to secure the funds required for elimination of grade crossings, installation of automatic brake control, and other similar improvements."

Favors Private Ownership.

"The railroads," says the chamber, "should continue to be privately owned and operated under government regulation. Railroad regulation should follow the principle of protecting the public interest and preserving the advantages of competition under fair conditions, at the same time seeking to give a fair return to capital and fair wages to employees."

Inasmuch as the state and federal commissions are developing, year by year, more effective methods of co-operation with one another, it may be confidently expected that state laws and regulations, and those of the federal government will be brought into such harmonious alignment that there will be no laws or regulations that will work against the general public interest by unnecessarily hampering the railroads."

WOMEN OF SOUTH CHEER WILSON

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—Former President Wilson is today made a brief address from the bay window of his residence to several hundred members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy who went to the Wilson home during their annual convention here. Mr. Wilson confined his remarks to an exchange of greetings, and made no reference to public questions.

The former President expressed appreciation for marks of esteem which have been voted for him by the convention, which yesterday cheered loudly mention of his name, and today made him and Chief Justice Taft honorary members of the organization.

Mr. Wilson was assisted to the window by Mrs. Wilson. Removing his hat with his right hand at the cheers of those in the street below, he said: "Allow me to express my warm gratitude for the kindly interest shown by you. I appreciate it very deeply."

PINCHOT DEFIES FEDERAL JUDGE

New York, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Austrian criticism of Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer for sentencing Controller Charles L. Craig to sixty days' imprisonment for contempt was broken out since the United States Supreme court dismissed Craig's writ of habeas corpus.

Controller Craig is preparing to go to the federal prison at Newark, N. J., and carry out the city's business from his cell, unless President Coolidge pardons him. Craig was sentenced three years ago because he characterized Judge Mayer's appointment of a receiver for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company as "monstrous."

Denunciation of Judge Mayer has come from supporters of free speech. Amos Pinchot, brother of the Pennsylvania governor, in a letter to the judge, defies the jurist to jail him and calls his sentence of Craig "monstrous."

U. S. ATTEMPTS TO LINK ANDREWS WITH RUM SPLIT

Papers Tangle Witness;
Revell on Stand.

First efforts to connect Rocco Andrews, former Illinois prohibition director, and Robert Mulcahy, once an alderman, with the alleged Grommes & Ullrich liquor conspiracy met with indifferent success yesterday as the government entered its last lap of direct evidence at the trial.
A seeming sensation was turned loose when the government produced testimony indicating Andrews had signed blank liquor removal permits and sent them to the warehouse, where they were filled in as customers purchased "stock." But under a withering cross-examination by the defense the witness, Albert Freeman, didn't know the difference between a permit and a proxy, or a share certificate and eleven cases of whisky.
Freeman admitted he is one of the habitués of Chicago's unofficial "curb market," at the corner of Clark and Randolph streets. He told of getting eleven cases of "whisky"—which he later admitted was brandy. He said he signed a permit application, which all right had been signed by Andrews, but then identified a proxy as the permit. He told how his share certificate was given him and swore it stated he would receive eleven cases. Then he identified a certificate which made no mention of anything but capital stock.
Romain Blakeslee, a garage owner, was the witness who told of Mulcahy. He told how the former alderman had rented a warehouse to store his 5,000 gallons of "assets," but brought smiles to the faces of the defense counsel when, in answering the government's questions, he said:
"When I was subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury and in this trial, I told Mulcahy, and he said: 'You go down there and tell the whole truth. The truth won't hurt me.'

A. H. Revell Testifies.
The government, however, met with considerable success during the day. It more firmly established its contention that Grommes "assets" frequently were sent to addresses for which no removal permit was issued and that quite often the liquor was delivered prior to the stock certificate. This, it contends, proves the distribution was a liquor affair and not a stock sale.
Alexander H. Revell, merchant, Robert Thorne of Lake Forest, formerly president of Montgomery Ward & Co.; John A. Chapman of Lake Forest, broker; W. L. Ross, broker; and Alvin Kramer, broker, were the chief witnesses. John R. Thompson Jr. is expected to testify today and the prosecution expects to finish its direct evidence not later than Monday noon.

Mr. Revell testified some of the Grommes liquor was sent to his stores, but he never signed application for a permit or received any stock.
"I sent the liquor back later," he explained. Because he hadn't actually looked into the cases and seen the liquor, the defense had much of his testimony stricken from the record.
Thorne's liquor was obtained for him by Chapman. Thorne said he signed no permit application.
W. A. Glichrist of 130 Walton place testified he got eighteen cases, but never signed a permit application and never received stock.

"All I know is I paid my money and got my liquor," he said.
Paul Wilder of Lake Forest, investment banker, was accompanied by his attorney.
"When I talked with Harry Taney (defendant) at the warehouse about the quality of the assets, he said, opening a bottle: 'If you have any doubts, just sample this and see how it is,'"
Mr. Wilder testified.
Under cross-examination he wasn't certain whether this was just a friendly drink or a sample used as a selling argument.

This Jury Does Its Run
Convicting in a Hurry
Marshall, Mich., Nov. 23.—(Special.)—It took a Calhoun county Circuit court jury 45 minutes to convict Edward Plektois of Albin of negligent homicide in the death of Paul Revere. Revere was killed when a car driven by Plektois, charged with being intoxicated, turned turtle. The maximum penalty is five years. The same jury in 12 minutes convicted Fred Sumok, Albin business man, of violating the dry law, though he claimed he did not know his partner sold moonshine in the store.

AUTO ACCIDENTS TO COST PERMITS BY MAYOR'S PLAN

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Mayor Dever said yesterday he plans to revoke the licenses of motorists who cause accidents.

Revocation of licenses curbed the liquor flow in Chicago, and the mayor believes it would be reasonably effective in curbing auto deaths and accidents. As soon as Chief Collins returns on Monday, the mayor said, he will discuss his plan and prepare to carry it out unless there are legal obstacles.

In Massachusetts last year the license of 1,248 motorists was either revoked or suspended. A judge in St. Louis yesterday revoked the license of a car owner. Judge H. M. Walker of the Municipal court recently compelled four motorists to cease operation of their cars for one year in order to avoid jail sentences.

Here's Dever's Proposal. Mayor Dever proposes that in the case of such accident of sufficient severity to necessitate a police call a detailed report shall be made out showing who was at fault.

This will be forwarded to the city hall, either with or without the recommendation of the police captain. Then the offending motorist will be summoned to show cause why his vehicle license should not be revoked or suspended.

Each motorist at present gets a state license permitting him to operate his car, but that is largely a fee paid to aid in the construction of hard roads, in the opinion of most laymen. This license can be revoked, in the opinion of a city hall lawyer.

In addition the motorist must pay an annual vehicle license fee to the city, and these fees are used to repair the pavements. This license fee is collected under an ordinance asserting that "it is unlawful to use any vehicle on any street, avenue, or alley unless such motor vehicle is licensed." The power of the city to pass such an ordinance comes from the cities and villages act, which permits the city to "direct, license, and control all wagons and other vehicles."

System Faces One Obstacle. The city code says the mayor can revoke any license when its holder "violates any of the city ordinances." So far the path for the operation of the mayor's idea is clear, but the state Supreme court has placed one stumbling block in the way which may or may not be serious. In a decision in the Harder Storage company case the court said the vehicle license fee is more of a tax than a license.

But if it is found the city cannot revoke the city vehicle license the mayor will consider a plan asking the state to revoke its license on information collected and presented by the city.

REALTY MEN INDUCE TAX Slash Plan of McCormick

The executive committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, meeting here yesterday with Senator McCormick of Illinois, endorsed the plan of Senator McCormick.

Slack for a conference of municipal, state, and national representatives to plan ways for decreasing the tax burden. Senator McCormick indicated that reports from many cities and states showed an increase of about 110 to 120 per cent in taxes in the last few years.

THE EUROPEAN DEBT.

Senator Smoot of the war debts funding commission says that the United States will ask a definite declaration from France of intentions regarding the settlement of the $4,000,000,000 account. This is the largest of the debts concerning which the intentions of the debtor are not known. Italy is next in size. France is the most prosperous of the debtors. Other debts are various and some of them strange. American money, before and after the armistice, went into nearly every national treasury in Europe, and in Africa got its bit.

Great Britain has returned its debt and is paying. There is a long road for over sixty years ahead of the British taxpayer. Poincaré, addressing the French chamber, has told the world that the French debt to the United States is not a debt, but an item in the common defense fund, and that the Americans will not get a cent of money back until France exhausts class A and B reparations from Germany and gets into the C class. The C class notoriously is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The debts of Europe to the United States are as follows:

|---------------------|-------------------|
| America | 12,973,174.37 |
| France | 26,942,294.00 |
| Italy | 457,197,129.50 |
| China | 774,000.00 |
| Czechoslovakia | 104,382,305.23 |
| Russia | 10,686,771.34 |
| Poland | 9,294,302.27 |
| Yugoslavia | 2,844,132,520.77 |
| Great Britain | 4,746,802,200.29 |
| Germany | 15,750,000.00 |
| Belgium | 1,488,125.89 |
| Spain | 1,302,715,465.21 |
| Sweden | 28,518.23 |
| Denmark | 5,728,873.23 |
| Norway | 170,385.23 |
| Finland | 11,281,376.81 |
| Portugal | 11,095,308.23 |
| Japan | 23,318,008.15 |
| South America | 20,038,033.20 |
| The loan to Germany | 11,228,000,747.00 |
| The loan to Poland | 397,355,211.79 |
| The loan to Belgium | 21,618,778.20 |

The unpaid interest amounts to over $1,500,000,000. These are the debts to America.

It seems to us that the United States is under moral compulsion to insist upon their validity and to demand that they be recognized and paid as may be possible. Otherwise we shall be guilty of a discrimination which hurts Great Britain, the one nation which is paying its debt. The French budget, for instance, is relieved of a charge which the British bears, and that relief can be expressed in expenditures in competition against Great Britain. The debts are economically and morally on the same footing. French national life should be adjusted to this obligation just as British national life has been.

A release of the French debt conceivably might result in a donation of $4,000,000,000, and more, to French military expenditures when the British were returning their expense money to pay up. These debts were not contributions to a common defense fund. America made its contribution to that fund in much larger amounts, and if we forgive any of the debts to solvent nations we should forgive them all, which we do not intend to do and should not do.

The American taxpayer is not on a bed of roses, and he is entitled to a return of his money which was a loan and not a contribution. Cancellation would really do France injury, and repudiation is something we do not believe the French will care to consider.

America ought not to proceed against a bankrupt nation to make it more miserable by the insistence of the creditor for his debt, but a debt is a debt and it does the debtor no good to forget it. Finland and the Czechs have given evidence of wanting to pay or recognize the obligation of paying.

The United States must proceed as a lender to require that the nations give evidence of their intention, not intending to crowd an honest debtor to the wall, but to help him to meet his obligations. The pressure ought to be maintained. We do not want and we do not need. It is for the good of these other people that they adjust themselves to their obligations, recognize them, and ultimately pay them.

SUPPORT THE CRIME COMMISSION.

Any citizen who in his budget keeps a page for contributions to works of public benefit ought to put the Chicago crime commission at the top of his list.

There are many activities that appeal to the intelligent public spirit of our community, but none more deserving, none more practical, none more quietly deserving than that of the commission which since 1919 has been at work in the discouraging field of crime prevention. By its study of the problems of criminality and through its steadily growing knowledge of the operations of criminals, the commission is giving the press, the public, and conscientious officials a groundwork essential to intelligent dealing with crime. That is a service of extraordinary value to the city and to the cause of efficient and decent government not only in Chicago but throughout the country. But the commission also exercises an immediate influence on behalf of efficient and honest administration of justice. Time and again, because it helps to make with conditions, it has prevented crime.

A LINE OF TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

FOG AT NIGHT IN A CITY STREET

The fog.
Like a cat.
Crept silently.
And like a great gray veil.
Wound itself about me.
Snatching at my throat.
With cold wet fingers.
Lights became obscure.
And distant.
As pale stars.
The hum of auto-drums.
Trilled off.
In muffled wails.
Shadows torpid.
Dimly outlined.
Passed to and fro.
And, like ghosts, of thought.
Taken flight.
One after another.
Disappeared.
In the gloom.
HEAVELY EMMETT.

Now that it is all passed, it is fitting to remember that this is, officially, Education Week, and that the county superintendent of schools won collection by telling us to say "It ain't" and "he don't."

RESTORATION OF THE FINE ARTS BUILDING.

The resolution of the south park board appropriating $500,000 for restoration work on the Fine Arts building at Jackson park brings that great project out of the doldrums where it had lain for months. The action is a piece of civic statesmanship which does honor to the foresight and public spirit of Commissioners Bain, Kelly, and Patterson. They have contributed substantially to the realization of that dream of a great and noble city, cherished by the makers of Chicago in every generation and dear to us all.

The resolution besides providing funds for the work directs the earliest practicable procedure and takes the important step of reviving the advisory committee of architects which was created to supervise the plans and process of rehabilitation. The addition of Mr. Lorado Taft was an excellent idea, and we assume Mr. George Maher, who has given so much thought and devoted effort to the project, will remain on the resuscitated committee. To have the restoration under the eye of men like Mr. Taft and Mr. Maher, who are both devoted and capable, is advisable, not to say essential.

Meanwhile we think the city owes a vote of thanks not only to the commissioners who have renewed the project but also to the various citizen bodies and their representatives who have informed it and are working loyally for its defense and realization.

THE NORTH SHORE TRAIN CONTROVERSY.

Ald. Albert of the Forty-third ward is promoting a fuse in the city council over the question of summarily barring North Shore electric trains from the elevated tracks within the city. He says the North Shore line has stolen franchise rights, and that the city has no business even to negotiate with a thief. Forty-three aldermen disagree with him, but 42,000 or more "L" riders may approve his campaign.

That is if Ald. Albert would prevent improper use of the city streets without return to the city; if he would prevent unfair discrimination in favor of the North Shore line against the Aurora and Elgin lines, for instance, or against the other suburban electric roads which do not have access to the loop; or even if he would improve service for "L" passengers, the council could properly support him. If his campaign should serve chiefly to keep prospective shoppers and other business out of the city by making travel less convenient, it would be extremely ill advised. Nor should it be used to accomplish what Mr. J. Haglan Patchmore designates as "a slight shift in the financial center of the city."

We need to do the thing which will bring the greatest good to Chicago, with the least injustice to any person or legitimate enterprise. No red faced opposition to "franchise thieves" ought to cloud that point. The city council is an organization for the promotion of the general welfare of Chicago. If such welfare can best be promoted by taking North Shore trains off the "L" tracks, let's take them off. If it can best be promoted by leaving them on and charging them for use of the city's rights in the streets, let's leave them on.

The "L" lines, no doubt, will argue that the North Shore trains do not inconvenience "L" passengers, because they relieve the "L" trains of travelers who otherwise would crowd the "L" trains to a North Shore station. But the thousands of citizens who have had their trains sidetracked while North Shore trains passed them, or who have stood on "L" platforms in the rush hour to see a North Shore train, half filled, move by, crowding out a possible "L" train, will disagree.

SPILLED MILK.

Winston Churchill, campaigning in Leicester and attacking the Baldwin government, said that a great man and a great British government not only could have obtained better terms for the payment of the British debt to America but could have used the debt to bring America into the council chambers of Europe. That's frank, but it comes evidently after America's admitted escape from the trap. The cost of collection probably would have been greater than the amount collected. We believe that a great American might have arranged, when the debt was contracted, not only to have recovered it later but to have obtained the British West India in addition.

If Mr. Churchill thinks the British spilled some milk he may be consoled. We didn't stop to pick up the bottle of cream on our doorstep.

WHERE WAS GIFFORD?

Gov. Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania charges that after the anthracite coal operators granted the recent wage increase to the miners at his suggestion, they proceeded to "pass on" the cost of the raise, amounting to 60 cents a ton, instead of "absorbing" it themselves, and that in consequence the public bears the burden of the change in the wage schedule. Though this is unconvincing here it is not surprising. The operators have merely been running true to form. But even so, where has Clifford been all the time? If memory is not treacherous, when the governor of Pennsylvania effected a settlement of the hard coal strike he announced that the wage increase was not to be passed on.

A LINE OF TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

FOG AT NIGHT IN A CITY STREET

The fog.
Like a cat.
Crept silently.
And like a great gray veil.
Wound itself about me.
Snatching at my throat.
With cold wet fingers.
Lights became obscure.
And distant.
As pale stars.
The hum of auto-drums.
Trilled off.
In muffled wails.
Shadows torpid.
Dimly outlined.
Passed to and fro.
And, like ghosts, of thought.
Taken flight.
One after another.
Disappeared.
In the gloom.
HEAVELY EMMETT.

Now that it is all passed, it is fitting to remember that this is, officially, Education Week, and that the county superintendent of schools won collection by telling us to say "It ain't" and "he don't."

RESTORATION OF THE FINE ARTS BUILDING.

The resolution of the south park board appropriating $500,000 for restoration work on the Fine Arts building at Jackson park brings that great project out of the doldrums where it had lain for months. The action is a piece of civic statesmanship which does honor to the foresight and public spirit of Commissioners Bain, Kelly, and Patterson. They have contributed substantially to the realization of that dream of a great and noble city, cherished by the makers of Chicago in every generation and dear to us all.

WHAT A STORY DID.

DOSTOEVSKI, a great Russian novelist, was epileptic and insane. He might have led an unprofitable life. Instead of that, he lived the life of a great mind in such a masterly way in the novels he wrote that his works are still best sellers. Furthermore, he founded the Russian school and so school has been more productive of good works during the last century. Clifford W. Deere is an American who became insane and had to live in institutions for several years. He might have led an unprofitable life. In 1908 he wrote "The Mind Which Found Itself." Since then he has used this story, backed up by his own restless energy and backed by the force of his associates, to lay down the foundations of a monumental work on mental hygiene. This monumental work is not a matter of stone, as its name suggests, but is a living, virile, going concern, the National Society for Mental Hygiene.

The first edition of "The Mind Which Found Itself," after relating Mr. Deere's experience, sounded the call to arms. The second edition abridges the narrative contained in the first and eliminates some of the propaganda material in order to find space for a record of accomplishment. I found this record very inspiring. For instance, what could be more inspiring than the following facts:

In preventing our troops for the world war, largely through the influence of the Mental Hygiene association, all men were rejected who were thought to be too unstable mentally to stand the strain of war at the front. Twenty-two thousand men were rejected for this reason. The results were: There were fewer evacuations for mental and nerve disturbance from the A. E. F. than from any other army of the same size in the history of the world. The evacuation rate was one-third that of our troops on the Mexican border in 1916. It was one-third that of the regular army. In comparison, 20 per cent of all evacuations in the British army was for that cause alone. Only 1,500 men were sent home from the A. E. F. on account of shell shock. The suicide rate of the A. E. F. was only one-tenth that of the regular army in 1915. More than one-half the suicides are due to well defined mental disturbance. Of the 1,500 men who came home from Europe, only 1,700 came as general prisoners. "There was less crime in the A. E. F. than there is in the regular army. The crime rate of the A. E. F. was not only lower than that of the regular army but it was lower than that of the civil population of the same age period." What could be more provoking than

MORE DOLLARS FOR THE LOOP

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In the issue of this Tribune of Friday, Nov. 15, I noted that Mayor Dever favors having elevated sidewalks in the loop as well as subways as a means to eliminate congestion. Perhaps his honor has not considered this question from any other angle than that of big business. In my opinion it would not relieve congestion but will tend to draw still more business into the loop. What is to become of the small outlying merchant who strives to build up a community? Is he to be stricken from the map entirely through continuous efforts and schemes to bring more millions of dollars into the loop?

ABATING THE SMOKE EVIL.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The writer wishes the opportunity to respond to Mr. Allen Brown's letter of the 14th, published in the "Voice of the People" column of the subject of "Smoke Abatement." The object of the recent editorial in the W. G. N. was accomplished in his case, as the department of health of the city and the advisory smoke abatement committee seek the cooperation of good citizens in their efforts to abate this nuisance. At the present time the commission is diligently trying to induce the business community and the council finance committee to increase the appropriation for the smoke department for the year 1934. If we succeed, we can assure a decrease within two years.

SOUTHERN AND UNCONGENIAL.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—I have just read the narrow minded editorial, "Radicalism and the Farmer," written by you, and it is on the same order as you have been writing for months, and I am only satisfied myself with the biblical reading, "Beware they have but they are not, and they have but they are not." You are not on the square or you are ignorant. Your stuff is rot. You have never given the south an honest deal and a real picture of the life of the poor people of the south. It is your writings that make real men vote for the John Browns, Brookharts, Laddies, Pringles, etc., and they are over and over again the same as you. I am not a farmer but I get disgusted reading your fool stuff and you are doing more harm than good.

REPORT YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD SMOKE NUISANCE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In yesterday's issue of the Chicago Tribune, in the column entitled "The Voice of the People," a letter signed "Alden Brown" appeared stating that in the North Austin Manor district are located two large factories which belch forth smoke continuously all day long.

THE EDITORIAL POLICY OF THE TRIBUNE IS EXPOSED.

Marquette, Ill., Nov. 17.—I was much impressed with your editorial in today's Tribune entitled "America." I turned to the next page in which an article appears from your society editor, Madame X. In this article she said that we should, in our international affairs, stand shoulder to shoulder with our so-called English cousins.

SOVIET POLIO

Says Oil Magnates Behave

Urge for Recognition.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—In a startling statement, the recognition of soviet Russia by the United States, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today, denounced William Randolph Hearst, who has recently urged on agitation in favor of the soviet.

Gompers charged that personal recognition is chiefly the interest in oil and other concessions in Russia.

Gompers statement follows: "After everything," said the union leader, "the fact of the matter is that the north pole, to four years ago for his recent deeds of heroism in the oil fields of Texas, there is no expression that so well describes the attitude of William Randolph Hearst in his latest campaign for recognition of the soviet."

"Hearst knows that the American people, and the American government want nothing to do with the bloody monsters of Moscow."

"Hearst knows that, outside of the 'fringes' and a certain number of publishers, writers, and other persons bribed by soviet agents, the support for soviet recognition has come from international financial speculation hunters, oil magnates, and the like."

"Hearst knows that the latest in soviet propaganda is the story of the soviet secretary of the interior, ex-Prime Minister Albert B. Fall, of Sinclair and Tapot Dome fame."

Oil Magnates Behind
Urge for Recognition.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.] In a brilliant statement opposing recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States, Samuel Compers, president of the American Federation of Oilmen, today denounced William Hearst, who has recently been agitating in favor of the recognition of Soviet Russia.

Compers charged that persons who are in the oil and other concessions in Russia are chiefly those who are in the oil and other concessions in Russia.

Compers statement follows: "Hearst knows more than this. He knows that the delegation of United States senators and congressmen who went to Russia at least one, Senator King, has had the courage or perhaps the wisdom to name openly the concessions in which he is interested."

"No here is Mr. Hearst with the colossal effort that 'international bankers' are responsible for the opposition of the United States to the recognition of the soviet."

"Let Hearst and his handful of friends in the senate and house (many have already deserted his sinking ship) come out in the open when congress meets and tell the American people just who the international bankers are who are preventing the recognition of the soviet."

"A lineup here now would be interesting."

Names Mining Magnates.
Hearst knows that the first industrial friend of the soviet in this country was—Col. William Boyce Thompson, mining magnate, director of Standard Oil, and that his weighty signature on things Russian and mining was publicly attested by Thomas W. Latham of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

"Hearst knows that the latest industrial friend for the soviet is the secretary of the interior, ex-Senator Albert B. Fall, of Sinclair and Rapid Dome fame."

"He knows that representatives of Standard Oil of the Barnsdall corporation, which is closer to Standard Oil than any other, have repeatedly returned from Russia with the proposition that 'something must be done at least to establish governmental contact' with the soviet."

"Hearst knows of the repeated Russian voyages of a certain western newspaper editorial magnate, Hearst is especially well acquainted with German-American and German-born high finance."

"Hearst knows all this, because he has spent much of his life in the propaganda of the soviet, and in his editorial, describing the soviet wealth in marble and diamonds to be gained by selling bonds with the soviet in terms of the soviet."

STOKES CHICAGO CASES WON'T BE DROPPED BY WIFE

Prosecution of W. E. D. Stokes in Chicago on charges of conspiracy to ruin the reputation of his wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, will not be dropped as a result of the settlement which yesterday ended Stokes' five year fight for divorce.

Mrs. Stokes wired her Chicago attorney, Charles E. Erbstein, that she made no arrangement whatever for disposition of the indictment returned by the Cook county grand jury several weeks ago after an investigation into Stokes' alleged attempt to brand Mrs. Stokes as an hysteric of a notorious south side madhouse.

"I have made no arrangement regarding Chicago indictment, as I understood the state's attorney there advised that," the telegram stated.

In New York Justice Wamsersley entered the formal decree dismissing Stokes' divorce complaint, held ground by a jury, and granting Mrs. Stokes separate maintenance. The decree did not recite the terms of the financial settlement between the Stokes, but it is reliably stated that Stokes established a trust fund of $800,000 for the benefit of his wife and two children.

"Let Hearst and his handful of friends in the senate and house (many have already deserted his sinking ship) come out in the open when congress meets and tell the American people just who the international bankers are who are preventing the recognition of the soviet."

"A lineup here now would be interesting."

DEATH LAD TO GAS.
A pot of coffee which boiled over and extinguished the flame in a gas stove, was believed to have caused the death of Joseph Kolassa, 1754 West 47th street, yesterday.

Names Mining Magnates.
Hearst knows that the first industrial friend of the soviet in this country was—Col. William Boyce Thompson, mining magnate, director of Standard Oil, and that his weighty signature on things Russian and mining was publicly attested by Thomas W. Latham of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

"Hearst knows that the latest industrial friend for the soviet is the secretary of the interior, ex-Senator Albert B. Fall, of Sinclair and Rapid Dome fame."

"He knows that representatives of Standard Oil of the Barnsdall corporation, which is closer to Standard Oil than any other, have repeatedly returned from Russia with the proposition that 'something must be done at least to establish governmental contact' with the soviet."

"Hearst knows of the repeated Russian voyages of a certain western newspaper editorial magnate, Hearst is especially well acquainted with German-American and German-born high finance."

Unusual Selling of Smart Frocks for Ages 16 to 6

For Those Who
Dress Their Young Daughters With Individuality

$10 $15 $20 $25

THE Frocks are both silk and wool, the wanted materials; are in the colors and shades of the season, and are all direct from the studios of one of the foremost designers of fashionable attire for young people whose parents desire to have individuality expressed in simplicity and youthful appropriateness.

In this Selling are Frocks suitable for School, others for Dress-up, and still others for Party wear.

Two typical Frocks in the Selling for older girls.

The extremely low prices in this unusual Selling are indicated above. And they are quite without comparison, especially when taken into full consideration as covering the new and exclusive with practically no two styles alike.

The materials are Wool Crepe, Wool Flannel, Wool Serge, Pique Twill, Velveteen, Crepe de Chine, Georgette, and Satin.

The Selling is comprehensive and there is every size represented all the way from 16 to 6 but there is no one Frock to be had in the complete range of these sizes nor in a complete range of colors.

Two typical Frocks in the Selling for younger girls.

THIS SELLING IS IN THE GIRLS' AND JUNIORS' ROOM 4th Floor.

Junior Check Velour Dresses at $25 a "Special"

Girls' and Juniors' Room, 4th Floor.

The Sort of Boots To Get For a Boy

TAN grain leather, blucher cut, quick as a flash and staunch as though they were made for a man, with oak soles that are neither stiff nor uncomfortable but that will stand the hardest sort of grilling such as the soles of a young live wire's shoes must get perforce—make an exceptionally good Boot for Boys. Sizes 11 to 2, $6.25; sizes 2½ to 6, $6.75.

Boys' Shoes, 2d Floor.

These Plaid and Jersey Dresses Have Adopted Youthful Styles

With Rounded Collars, Long Sleeves and Slim Lines

THE soft, informal type of Dress is of paramount importance now in the wardrobe of every young girl, whether she happens to choose it for campus wear or for other daily occasions. These are simple in style and very youthful, with their long sleeves and straight lines.

The one at the left is a plaid with linen collar and cuffs. Priced at $28.50. In the center is a jersey in navy, brown, green, henna or rosewood, $22.50. At the right, a plaid velour in brown and tan, navy and white, navy and tan, and tan and navy. $22.50.

Misses' Dresses—Sixth Floor, North State.

Hats of Faille Brighten Winter Costumes

And are Augmented by Fruit, Flowers, Pins and Graceful Veils

From the American Room

FAILLE, having been established as one of the most popular millinery fabrics of the season, has asserted itself with a bright persistence in smart Hats. These from the American Room are in an assortment of attractive shapes and colors, many of them trimmed in fruit, flowers and novelty veils. The Hat illustrated at the left is $15. Other models are $10 and $15.

Junior Hats

French felt in the gayest of colors has been chosen for these Misses' Hats trimmed with gros-grain ribbon. The Hat sketched in the center is $7.50. Other Hats for Misses in a variety of materials and colors are $3.75 up.

From the English Room

Shown at right and priced at $22.50, is one of the new faille silk Hats made in our own workrooms. These are in turbans, off-the-face and cloche shapes with embroidered crowns and brims, and in all the new shades such as wood, copen, titian, gray, jade, rose and tangerine. Pins, ornaments, and rosettes of the material are used for trimming. Others are priced from $18 to $22.50.

Millinery Sections—Fourth and Fifth Floors

Wool and Velvet Dresses At $35 and $45 in a Special Selling.

Are Among The Most Unusual Values Presented This Month

THESE Dresses are in smart styles for mid-winter wear, and as the results of a special purchase, are unusually good values. Those in wool fabrics are enlivened not only by bright touches of embroidery, but by many smart little marks of fashion—such as the small circular swirl at the bottom of a skirt, the turn of a sleeve, the clever use of a bit of fur. Five attractive styles are sketched.

The dinner and afternoon Dresses of chiffon velvet in black and brown are most attractive. Many of the models are bouffant and trimmed in fur and flowers.

DEVER WILL LEAD FIGHT TO LAND DEMOCRAT MEET

BY PARKE BROWN.

Mayor Dever has joined the forces that are trying to obtain the Democratic national convention for Chicago. He will go to Washington to present the city's case to the party national committee when it considers the petitions of New York, Cleveland, St. Louis, and other cities that want the convention. He probably will be the principal speaker for the Chicago delegation.

It has been twenty-eight years since Chicago was honored with a Democratic national meet, but the indications are that it will win this time. The convention committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce is said to be well along toward the $100,000 necessary to cover expenses and the general sentiment is reported to favor Chicago because of its central location, its hotel facilities, and other accommodations.

Will Follow Republican Meet.
The Democratic affair probably will be held the week following the Republican convention which probably will be some time next June. In this connection Illinois Democratic leaders are pointing out the desirability of having a delegation unhampered by instructions.

To date there is no telling what, if any, Democratic candidates will enter the Illinois primary. Gossip that McAdoo might put up a contest there has been a rumble that showed there will be a real battle if he takes such a step. At least there will be a stale-

DISMISSAL OF MEDILL STIRS RESENTMENT IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

STARRISBURG, Ill., Nov. 22.—[Special.]

Gov. Len Small, through the office of Robert M. Medill, director of mines and minerals, has stirred up a political hornet's nest in southern Illinois. Resentment over the dismissal of Medill is rampant here, his old home, and is spreading over all "Egypt."

Medill has been mine superintendent at various southern Illinois coal fields, and in these communities he is popular with both operators and miners. Medill was a holdover from the Lowden cabinet.

When Small took hold of the governor's office he was warned by Republican leaders of the Twenty-fourth congressional district, in the only downstate district he carried in the 1920 primary, to keep his hands off Medill.

This he did until some of his advisers told him it might be to his advantage to fire Medill and put in a man who would "operate" better in politics.

Senator Ewington continues to meet with splendid receptions. The last two days have been spent in Hamilton and Saline counties. Conferences with county committee men show that they are keenly interested. Chairman A. B. Anderson is leading the Ewington crowd in Hamilton county. He is a cousin of Dr. C. H. Anderson, superintendent of the state hospital at Anna.

ing horse put up by the Illinois organization to keep the state away from him. But even if the organization wins in this way it is considered certain the delegates will be classified as uncommitted.

Want Uncommitted Delegates.

THAT HEADGEAR OF LA FOLLETTE WON'T BE TOSSED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]

Senator La Follette (Rep., Wis.), leader of the radical bloc in congress, in all probability will make no active campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. Furthermore, there is doubt whether he will enter into a campaign for the presidency on a third party ticket.

This information from the most reliable sources is going the rounds in Washington. Confirmation is lacking because Senator La Follette, ever since he returned from his European trip, has been confined to bed on his physician's orders with an attack of influenza. This is not regarded as serious, however, and has nothing to do with his keeping out of the presidential race.

"Fighting Bob" has had such an active and aggressive career that even his closest friends are in the habit of forgetting that he is close to 70 years old. A presidential campaign of the kind that Senator La Follette would put on would be a severe tax upon any man's strength, and word comes how that the senator's physician has advised him that it is out of the question next year.

Senator La Follette has been practically no one since his return to Washington two weeks ago. He has not been at his office in the capitol. His absence has mystified Republican leaders and has caused the party to waver in framing their plans, especially as to organization and committee assignments.

Girl, 5, Dies After Eating Pills Believed to Be Poison

BRITONS MIXED UP IN NEWEST RUM SCANDAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—[Special.]

The early arrest of a number of prominent Englishmen and Americans said to be involved in a wholesale liquor smuggling and marketing conspiracy by what is termed the "most gigantic rum combination ever formed," legal or illegal, was promised today at the office of the United States district attorney.

The combine, according to officials, invested vast sums in the transfer of liquor from England to this country, where it was bootlegged wholesale through a well organized system in the principal cities of eastern states.

WOMEN PICTURE MAN MERE DUST WHEN THEY RULE

in Mock Senate.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

They spent the first half of yesterday afternoon at the closing session of the third annual convention of the Illinois League of Women Voters conducting a mock senate session to show the foibles of men legislators.

They spent the latter half of the same afternoon in the same room of the Congress hotel holding a testimonial meeting to the fact that it took men voters to elect women candidates.

And both halves got across impassioned messages that were applauded enthusiastically by the 300 delegates present.

Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch presided at the mock legislative session, in which prominent Chicago women, assuming roles of senators in a woman made world, where the men were clanking vines, satisfied certain masculine reactions to feminine participation in politics.

Salvage Wild Flower Law.

It was brought out, in song and story, that the Illinois legislature at its last session passed a law that "saved the dear wild flowers" and forgot bills for mother and children in order to preserve the fringed gentian.

Attorney Esther Dunneha urged a phantom bill 6,222, to allow men to be jurors, because, she argued, "under the present system of women jurors a good looking man is freed virtually before trial. And if the man is ugly, then the women cry out that the fathers of our children must not hang!"

Mrs. M. H. Lieber, speaking against the bill, pointed out that "the jury room is no place for men, for the women smoke and spit, and paraded what she claimed was a typical argument by pleading, amid a riot of laughter, 'I wouldn't want my husband to be a juror.'

This One Has Pardon Pull.

As an added feature of travesty, during one of the speeches Mrs. E. E. Shirk appeared in an upper balcony and heckled the speaker. When ordered away she shouted: "Arrest me, I don't care. You can't keep me in jail. The governor will pardon me."

Miss Clara Bell Rice launched a bill exempting from service all "fathers of young children." Miss Jeanette Rankin advocated appropriate dress for men jurors, including knee breeches.

Following the burlesque Miss Julia Lathrop, president of the league, presided at an "experience meeting."

Nonpartisan groups of civic minded women are splendid to have helping a woman candidate, but it's the regular political party organization that gets her elected, declared Mrs. Fletcher Doherty, president of the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club.

Mrs. Harriet Polk, mayor of Colchester, Ill., had to win her first campaign with her husband. After that it was pretty easy, although much harder than keeping house. The only difficulty now, Mayor Polk explained, is that the town has "one bad hootler."

LAUNCH MOVE TO CUT DEATHS BY HEART DISEASE

"Drive" Patterned on
T. B. War.

Control of heart disease by means of the medical, educational, and civic methods which more than halved the death rate from tuberculosis took definite form as a community measure yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago Association for the Prevention and Relief of Heart Disease, held in the rooms of the Woman's club.

That there is an assured hope of cutting down the death toll exacted annually by the disease, that certain cases may be prevented and a large percentage of others relieved, was the theme of the meeting.

High Mortality Rate.

Heart disease causes more than two times the number of deaths caused by tuberculosis each year in Chicago. From figures supplied by Health Commissioner Dundesen it was shown that whereas the death rate from tuberculosis in 1915 was 17.06 per 10,000 and has been cut down to 7.33 in 1922, the death rate from heart disease has risen from 17.65 to 19.41 over the same period.

His Popular Fears.

"The popular conception of heart disease, a conception shared by not a few doctors, is of a disease incurable, likely to cause sudden death, and for which nothing can be done," declared Dr. James B. Herrick, president of the association. "The popular belief is that there is no prevention, no prescription except digitalis, no prospect except an invalid's life of useless inactivity, and an early and generally sudden end."

It is a matter for education, Dr. Herrick declared, to teach doctor and layman that heart disease is subject to certain forms of control, that to a large degree an early breakdown may be prevented, that a single breakdown does not spell invalidism and disaster, and that by simple means of readjustment a patient's status may be changed from one of a dependent to that of an efficient wage earner.

Twelve Clinics Here.

In cooperation with the association work is already being carried on in twelve Chicago clinics. It was stated in one of these clinics alone it was estimated that treatment had added $25,000 to the earning capacity of its heart patients.

"Twenty years ago," declared Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE and member of the board of governors of the association, "heart disease stood fifth in the list of fatal diseases in Chicago. Today it heads the column. At that time the consumptive visioned only a year or two of useless existence, with death at the end. Then came the campaign against tuberculosis, with its cut in the death rate. A similar campaign against heart disease is bound to do the same thing."

Indicted in Ram Runner "Shakedown" Gain Delay

Sgt. Edward Smale, Patrolman
Hugo Marker, Edward J. Mitchell, and
Thomas Gariya, under federal indictment for an alleged attempted "shake-down" of a runner for $12,000, with impersonating prohibition officers, and with a supposed theft of 100 cases of whisky, were granted a continuance until Dec. 10 by Federal Judge W. G. Lindley when it was found that their attorney was ill.

Assistant District Attorney Edwin L. Weist urged the court to set the case for immediate trial, citing insupportable continuances.

U.S. ELECTRICAL FIRM FORMS BIG JAPAN COMBINE

BY RODERICK MATHESON.

[Chicago Tribune Feature News Service.]

TOKYO, Nov. 22.—A big Japanese-American combine has just been formed.

The Westinghouse Electric and the Takata electric industries have combined to form the Mitsubishi Electric company, to manufacture and sell electric equipment in Japan.

Through the combination American electrical equipment interests, which heretofore have been closely associated with the Takata group, the company was incorporated for $15,000,000 to manufacture electrical goods and steam and electrical turbines. Shops exist at Kobe, Osaka, and Nagoya. Ground has been broken for the construction of a new plant at Nagoya to employ 4,000.

Exchange of Patents.

According to the agreement the American corporation will get all the Japanese patent rights of the Westinghouse Electric, while the Westinghouse International will become the licensee of the Mitsubishi and Takata patents for the rest of the world.

The Japanese plant of the General Electric company was destroyed, and the American plant was partly wrecked. The deal gives the Westinghouse company the advantage of an immediate large market. Officials of the Westinghouse company have been here for a month concluding the negotiations, which began two years ago.

The exact proportion of the paid up capital each will furnish has not been disclosed, but American capital and the Westinghouse engineering brains will be available in any quantity to fill the needs of the Japanese corporation.

Decorations for Officials.

Gen. Tripp, president of the Westinghouse company, and Loyal Osborne, vice president, who have been here conducting the negotiations, have just been decorated with the sacred tree.

ure and second class service orders of Japan, respectively. The Americans are now visiting points of interest in Japan and will sail for Shanghai on Saturday. They will inspect various branches of the concern throughout the world and are due in New York on Nov. 3.

Hermann Westinghouse and John F. Miller, president and vice president of the Westinghouse Air Brakes company, are here independently, but the subject of their visit has not been announced.

FOURTH DEATH ON L. C.

Frank Robinson, 65 years old, of 8333 Calumet Avenue, was found dead on the Illinois Central tracks yesterday at 9:15 a.m. His death had been expected.

SMILING BENNIE'S BRIDE TOSSES UP "REFORMER'S JOB"

"I have done my best to make a loving husband of him, but it looks as though it's no use. I guess it's up to me to get a divorce, as I should have done a year ago."

Mrs. Benjamin Karpen, pretty young wife of the nephew of Solomon Karpen, millionaire furniture manufacturer, made this statement yesterday in the office of Attorney Charles E. Branstetter. Then the "reforming wife" reviewed the dozen or more times she has made up her mind to seek her freedom.

Smiling Bennie married Miss Edna Webster in Crown Point, more than two years ago. The first two months of the matrimonial venture were happy. Then began a series of trips to the Court of Domestic Relations.

Finally Mrs. Karpen made up her mind to get a divorce. The bill was filed and the matter brought before Judge William L. Morgan. Karpen was ordered to pay his wife $25 a week alimony.

After a few weeks of this the couple were again reconciled. That was the last heard of their domestic troubles until yesterday.

FATHER OF NINE KILLED.

Joseph Staskey, 15614 South Halsted street, the father of nine children, died yesterday of injuries received when he fell from a scaffold on his newly completed home.

We don't want to sell you a pair of shoes unless we can sell you a pair that you can be proud of. And the shoes we sell must be right in every particular, or we insist that they be made right so that we also may be proud of them.

Buys a Better

Two Trouser Suit or Overcoat at This Upstairs Shop

NEVER before in the history of my establishment have men crowded my shop in search of clothing values as they have in the past few weeks. I have proved to hundreds of men and young men that they can get the best suits and overcoats in Chicago at 30% less cost than ground floor stores charge for the same quality of merchandise.

I carry a complete stock of the finest grade in one or two trouser suits and overcoats—made by America's leading manufacturers and bearing their labels. My garments are all wool, latest style, and are guaranteed to fit and wear. My location, on the 3d floor of the North American Bldg., State and Monroe Streets, and inexpensive fixtures, low rent, and my knowledge of the clothing business are the reasons I can sell 30% cheaper. Make me prove it. A call is all I ask. You can wait on yourself.

For the convenience of late shoppers, this store will remain open Saturday Evening. Come in and make a selection for Thanksgiving.

Embodying Rich Woolens Cut on the Smartest Lines and Offered at the Lowest Price Noted This Season for the Quality

YOU'VE doubtless seen just as fine-looking Suits and Overcoats as these this season—but not at this low price. They're entirely new assortments, provided through specially favorable arrangements with leading makers and offered now for the first time.

The exceptionally low price is a better indication of our power in the market than it is an accurate reflection of the high quality of these Suits and Overcoats. Rightly to judge the latter and to gauge the out-and-out character of the value thus made available, you should examine these garments in detail. Even if you've just recently purchased, we advise you—knowing what we do about these Suits and Overcoats—to consider carefully the advantage of adding further to your wardrobe in this important Selling at a saving distinctly worth while.

The Overcoats

THE MODELS include handsome, warm Ulsters cut on London lines, full-belted Raglans, and very smart Box Coats. The colors are shades of tan, gray, and the popular new powder blue. The majority are quarter-lined with an excellent quality of satin, and all are finely tailored from woolens—some imported—of a character never intended to go into Overcoats at this low price.

The Suits

PRINCIPALLY our Rookery and Bowl models—the latter worn by fully ninety percent of the Men observed by our representative at the recent Yale-Princeton game in New Haven. Every Suit in the offering made to our exacting specifications—the highest in the industry. In worsteds, tweeds, rough chevrons—grays, browns, blues, stripes, and blue-gray mixtures.

We Cannot Overemphasize the Exceptional Character of This Offering

SOLDIERS' BONUS FIRST, POLICY OF SOME SENATORS

Would Force Issue Ahead of Tax Revision.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—(Special.)—A movement is under way by some senators who are unreservedly for it to force soldiers' bonus legislation early in the session of congress which convenes next month and to take up tax reductions afterwards.

Many senators do not agree with Secretary Mellon that tax reduction will be impossible if there is to be a bonus bill, and their purpose is to make sure of the bonus and then to reduce taxes as much as possible afterwards.

Among the senators who are organizing to resist tax legislation until the bonus is out of the way are Hiram Johnson (Rep., Cal.), Brookhart (Rep., Ill.), Shipstead (Rep., Minn.), Howland (Rep., Neb.), Norris (Rep., Neb.), and Magnus Johnson (Farm-Labor, Minn.).

Want to Cut Small Income Taxes.

It also developed today that an increase in income tax exemptions will be urged when congress gets down to consideration of revenue revision. Farm bloc members, radical Republicans and others will propose to lighten the burdens of the small taxpayer more than the Mellon program.

Senator Capper (Rep., Kas.), head of the senate farm bloc, favors exempting all incomes up to $2,000. Representative Frear (Rep., Wis.), member of the house ways and means committee and leader of the La Follette group in the house in matters of taxation, favors a similar program.

Senator Capper joins the groups objecting to the reduction in surtaxes on large incomes as recommended by Secretary Mellon. If surtaxes are lowered he thinks the excess profits tax should be restored and inheritance tax increased. As a means of reaching tax exempt securities, Senator Capper favors placing an additional inheritance tax upon tax free bonds.

The proposed increase in personal exemption up to $2,000 would have the effect of relieving several million individuals from the payment of any income tax. The treasury is expected to oppose such a move, both because of the loss in revenue and also because of a belief that the payment of a small tax increases the interest of a citizen in the affairs of government.

Capper on Tax Reduction.

"The national treasury will have a surplus this year, announces Secretary

Mellon," Senator Capper says. "It is estimated the federal government could get along with $200,000,000 less revenue from taxes. Mr. Mellon brings forward a tax reduction program, which includes a cut from a maximum of 48 cents per cent in the surtaxes on big incomes.

"That would further reduce the taxes of those amply able to pay taxes. If taxes are to be reduced, and they should be, the place to begin is by exempting all incomes up to $2,000. It is the man of small income who should be favored.

"If the surtax on big incomes is lowered, the excess profits tax must be put back, and we should increase the inheritance tax on large incomes. It is the lower income taxes that should be relieved. These would make the farmer's burden lighter," says tax. In my opinion, is out of the question. The country will not stand for it.

"I shall oppose any reduction of big surtaxes without corresponding reductions in taxes of taxpayers less able to pay. I shall work against any tax program which increases or does not decrease the farmer's tax burden."

MADDOO PLEASED OVER RESULT IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 22.—The results of the South Dakota county proposal meetings, in which William G. McAdoo led Henry Ford as a Democratic presidential possibility, were characterized here today by Mr. McAdoo as "certainly very gratifying."

Turning to the treasury department's stand on the soldiers' bonus, Mr. McAdoo issued a statement declaring that the nation should take the soldiers' bonus question out of politics by paying the veterans in cash raised by issuing fifty year bonds, and by so doing build an effective barrier against any future demand for such pensions.

Senator Norbeck for Hiram. Watertown, S. D., Nov. 22.—United States Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota is in favor of Senator Hiram Johnson of California for President, according to the Watertown Public Opinion.

SWEARS MCCRAY USED FUND GIVEN HIM FOR BANK

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22.—That Gov. Warren T. McCray represented that he had the first $10,000 of the $125,000 he obtained from the state board of agriculture for deposit in the Discount and Deposit State bank of Kentland was the testimony of I. Newt Brown, financial secretary of the board, before Harry C. Sheridan, master in chancery, who is conducting the hearing on the petition of three Fort Wayne banks to have the governor declared a bankrupt. McCray at the time was president of the bank.

The witness said the governor was given a check for $25,000 on June 2, another for a like amount on June 8, and one for $50,000 on June 12.

In describing the third transaction Brown testified "the governor said he was in need of some more funds" and would like to have a check for $50,000," and said "he wanted to furnish his note as additional security for the loan."

DISCUSS CITY'S TRACTION FUND INTEREST CLAIM

Mayor Dever's traction advisers argued the city's claim to interest on its $1,000,000 share of the surface lines earnings for hours yesterday. They also examined engineers' reports regarding a generation of subway study.

Heated discussion was heard from their room in Corporation Counsel F. X. Busch's office, but when the conference was over the legality of the interest claim had not been determined. It is understood the conference decided on only one point in their subway studies, from which the mayor hopes to evolve a message two weeks hence.

All of the engineer-experts employed by the city for a decade or more, they found, have agreed that subways are practical and necessary.

Charles E. Merriam participated in the conference with Corporation Counsel Busch, Ald. U. S. Schwartz and Attorneys Foster, Sexton, Frank, and Holly.

The "CARRIAGE TRADE"

[-There's not enough of it to go around]

IN the days when "carriage trade" really meant something, the fine ladies bought silks and the humble workingman bought hickory shirts.

In these days (when the merchants who crave "carriage trade" would starve on it if they had nothing else) the humble workingman buys about as much silk as the fine lady, and he outnumbers the fine lady a thousand to one!

No, there is not enough of it to go around, not nearly enough.

For each Rolls-Royce there are ten thousand low-priced cars. For every ermine cape there are ten thousand Hudson seal coats; for every hand-made boot there are ten thousand substantial "ready-mades."

And the man who rides in the Rolls-Royce can't eat any more pancakes than the chauffeur! Yet see the scramble for the "carriage trade"!

The wise merchant long since turned to mass patronage for his bread and butter. He likes what there is of the "carriage trade," but he likes it for what it is — a toothsome side dish.

The kind of MASS audience that is reached by the Chicago Evening American is what he likes in Chicago — the kind of MASS that includes all the "class" that is influenced by advertising.

EARL & WILSON

CUBS SIGN UP 'KID' GLEASON; BUY HORNSBY

5 Bears and $100,000
Go to St. Louis.

BY FRANK SMITH.

The long expected deal of the Cubs for the services of Rogers Hornsby, veteran second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, has been closed, or will be closed within the next two days. Details of the deal which will cost the Cubs $100,000, a much larger sum than was paid for the late Babe Ruth, were found for the first time today.

William "Kid" Gleason, late pilot of the White Sox, will wear a Cubs uniform next year. The veteran who broke into the game as long ago as it is hard to recall the date will be chief assistant to Manager Bill Killefer, and it is said, will receive most of his time coaching reserve players.

Rickey Here Today.
The deal involving Hornsby and the Cubs will receive the stamp of approval by Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, who will be in the city today, certainly as one of the principal speakers at the dinner of the Chicago alumni chapter of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity at the University club tomorrow.

William Veeck, president of the Cubs, at present is in French Lick on the third week of a vacation. It is possible he will be here tomorrow, but at the event of his absence John Egan, secretary, will be on the job to turn over the money and sign the necessary papers. He is due back in the city today.

There may be some weak details of the foregoing statements, and those most vitally interested will ponder how the news escaped. But one can wager almost anything that the statements are correct.

Veeck Long After Hornsby.
The writer has been in possession of some of the facts for several days, but only last night was able to tie down the report from a source he believes authentic.

At the end of the 1922 season President Veeck of the Cubs publicly stated that he would like to have Hornsby coming over from the north side pasture. He asked his grip, bought a ticket and sped to St. Louis. He went into conference with President Brendan and Manager Killefer of the Cards but came back home declaring that the Cards wanted the whole Cub team. Veeck is said to have left an offer and some of the Cubs concerned in the present deal were mentioned at that time.

Then the Cards got in touch with New York, hoping to put over a deal with McGraw, but the wily eastern manager by this time had become suspicious and failed to renew a $50,000 offer for Hornsby said to have been made a year ago. Brendan at this time announced he wanted players and not cash for the second season. He is reported to have come to blows with Killefer over how the team should be managed and who said he never again would wear a Card uniform.

Deal with Giants Falls.
McGraw might have given cash—$150,000—for Rogers, along with a few players, but the Giants manager was after more than one candidate to bolster up his fading champions. Thus his dicker with the Boston Braves came along which involved Bancroft, Stengel, and Cunningham for Southworth and Oeschger.

Brendan and Rickey about this time were in Montreal dickering on buying him and then from the Cardinals. Batters for a ball park if they could have the Syracuse franchise transferred. Their plan was to have a "turn" for Card recruits. They are said to have stopped off in New York in their return, but made no headway with the Giants, and fell back on the Cub offer.

There was some dickering back and forth, and from best information obtainable the five Cubs and the cash consideration were agreed upon as payment for the services of Hornsby.

Battle for Popularity.
The coming of Gleason to the north side will counterbalance Frank Chance as an attraction on the south side. While the "Kid" will not be in the commanding role he turned over to Chance, it looks from here as if a popularity contest now would favor the south side.

Gleason will be a cog in the Cub machine that is badly needed. He will be able to devote most of his time to the pitchers, and in such a position he probably has no equal. In addition, his long experience in baseball, added to the cunning and ability of Bill Killefer, should make the north side contenders for the National league championship years before the team.

The Cubs from an attendance standpoint led the league this year. They have been gaining supporters steadily under the present regime, which has left no stone unturned to build up a winner. With Hornsby at the key position, it looks as if their efforts would be rewarded.

Will Miss Miller's Bat.
Hack Miller, one of the Cubs to go to St. Louis, has served two years with the north side. He came from Oakland of the Pacific Coast league after the 1921 season. The "Division" and Clark street boy attracted attention in the far west by his penchant for hitting 'em far, and in this respect he has lived up to his minor league reputation. During the recent season he topped his mates in home runs by socking fourteen on his home lot and six elsewhere.

Being of great size, Miller lacks the speed that many managers demand, but his ability to break in every so often with a long smack makes him a dangerous batter. In the field he plays according to how he is hitting. When in a batting slump he falls down on defense, but when hitting he gets around with the agility of a colt.

History of Hollocher.
Charlie Hollocher, undoubtedly one of the best shortstops in the business and easily the class of the National league when he is right, came to the Cubs in 1918 from the Portland club, where more than one great infield guardian has been brought out. He was a star almost from the start, but showed gradual improvement as he became more experienced, and although slight of build, developed into considerable hitter.

The illness of Hollocher last spring was a knockout blow to the Cubs, who had to go through most of the season with a new infield. Just how much Hollocher's absence cost the team in the shape of victories never will be known, but it was considerable. He first complained of being off his feet while in the training camp at Catalina Island. Prior to going there he had passed through a siege of the flu.

After struggling through the training camp Hollocher thought himself improved and he played regularly for a time after the season opened, but eventually he decided he was a sick man, so packed up his duds and went back to St. Louis, his home town. Stories immediately started that Hollocher's real purpose in "jumping" the team was to force a trade that would send him to the Cardinals, thus making it possible for him to be at home most of the summer.

Hollocher in Good Shape.
After a season of idleness, during which time he played golf continually, followed by some hunting trips this fall, Hollocher announces himself in perfect health. This feature was the one on which the whole deal hinged, as the St. Louis club's officials wanted to make sure of the condition of their future shortstop before letting their great second baseman depart.

The passing of Hollocher leaves a big infield gap on the Cubs' team, that will not be offset immediately even by the playing of Hornsby. However, the club will take a chance on Adams. This little fellow did yeoman service after Hollocher had gone home, but he has much to learn. He still has to master the art of playing a ground ball, but practice probably will develop his present weakness. At last he gives great promise.

Virgil Cheever, right hand hurler, came to the club via purchase from Eastland, Tex., in 1920. Although possessed of great possibilities as a slinger, he has never swung into a winning stride. In new surroundings he may come through. Cheever was released to Wichita Falls at the end of the Cub season, but will be brought back for the deal.

Ernie Osborne has been with the Cubs two seasons, and at times has produced some winning baseball, particularly in 1922. He was purchased from Nashville, Tenn. Marty Callaghan, a youngster of promise, never played a regular role. He came from the Worcester (Mass.) club after the 1922 season.

GASOLINE ALLEY—SKEEZIX'S MUSICAL EDUCATION POSTPONED AGAIN

Parelli Hurt; Forfeits Final Fall to Meyers in Mat Bout

Johnny Meyers, middleweight champion, successfully defended his title against Joe Parelli of Boston in the main event of the wrestling show staged by John (Doc) Krone at the Ashland Boulevard Auditorium last night by winning two of the three falls.

The champion won the first fall in 27:05 with a double wrist lock and head scissor, while Parelli took the second in 12:10 with a head lock. In the third and deciding fall each came close to winning on several occasions, but neither had the strength to pin his opponent.

Parelli Forfeits Final Fall.
After the men had been on the mat for 34:25 Parelli applied a flying mare on his fast rising opponent. The fall shook up the champion and the Italian repeated the trick a second time. They fell close to the front of the stage and as Meyers tried to extricate himself from the hold, which Parelli tried to make secure, both rolled off the stage and on to the floor. Meyers was not hurt, but Parelli was so badly bruised he was unable to continue and had to forfeit the fall and match.

Matchmaker Krone asserted he will rematch the pair for an early show.

In the semi-windup Jack Reynolds of Cedar Rapids, Ia., claimant of the welterweight title, won over Olie O'Connell of New Orleans in straight falls. Reynolds won the first fall in 27:44 with a leg hold and the second in 2:38.

In Motorom D. L. JENKINS

ANOTHER "concrete" example of the actual saving afforded every motorist by paved roads comes from R. A. Balcom of Springfield, who operates fifteen cars through the "rent a car" system. His estimates show that with each car having covered 12,000 miles, the paved roads bring a uniform saving of 24 cents a mile over dirt highways downstate. He knows by carefully kept records that if each car had been operated the full 12,000 miles over paved roads he would be $288 ahead on each car for the season.

The latest model in garages, according to Martin C. Schwab, the architect, is that opened in Chicago by the Chicago Motor Coach company. The huge building, with a floor area of 8,750 square feet, can accommodate more than 200 buses. An enormous glass roof 25 feet high, if movable, provides light and ventilation.

President C. W. Nash of Nash Motors reported yesterday that his company shipped 4,549 passenger cars in October, as compared with 3,888 in October a year ago, and that November production bids fair to show a like increase.

SAME OFFICERS FOR WESTERN GOLF AGAIN

NOLE-IN-ONE CLUB
T. D. HARVEY of the Evansville Community Golf club joined the "one" last Sunday afternoon when he made the eighth hole, ninety yards, in one. He was playing with George Fiedler, Allen O'Meara and Mrs. Harvey.

Edwin Hancock enrolled in the new way on Sunday, a midweek shot at the eighth hole, 125 yards, at the Evansville Golf club, being the "one" course. His opponent was W. C. Caldwell.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 22.—O. B. Canaday, while playing golf with Building Commissioner Herbert Erickson of the city of Gary, made the second hole, 200 yards, in one at the Indian Ridge course.

BY JOE DAVIS.
The Western Golf association will sail through the next year with its crew unchanged and with Charles O. Pfeil of Memphis at the helm. The other officers will be Vice President Melvin A. Taylor of Middletown, Secretary Joseph W. Busch of Bloomington, Treasurer A. C. Allen of Skokie. All were renominated. There will be no opposition ticket, so the matter of election at the annual meeting Dec. 4 at the Congress hotel will be a formality.

The directors named are: J. E. Weller of Terre Haute, Ind.; W. J. Foye of Omaha; N. J. Clarke of Mayfield, Cleveland, O.; A. S. Kery of Seattle; W. M. Armstrong of Los Angeles.

The nominating committee for 1924 consists of Hobart P. Young of Emmoret, Fred Scott of Indian Hill, J. A. Kennedy of Tulsa, Blaine Young of Omaha, and Fred Tridle of Rockford. Two amendments to the constitution will be voted on, one increasing the number of vice presidents to two, one of whom can be appointed by the board of directors, and the other establishing the position of general counsel to the association.

The annual dinner will precede the meeting at 7 o'clock. Each club is entitled to two voting delegates, but all members of clubs are invited to be present. Tournaments for the 1924 season will be awarded.

Two years ago in forty players there were two Italians, and last year in a field of sixty there were eight Italians. The increase is due to the success of Gene Sarazen.

W. G. Nell was elected president of the Ruth Lake Country club of Hinsdale, the other officers being: Vice president, L. A. Rawson; secretary, W. T. Dawson; treasurer, F. H. McElhenny. The club, which is known as an "every day man's" golf club, had a successful season financially.

The Chicago Beach Hotel Indoor Golf school, completed at a cost of $15,000, will open tomorrow night. There will be a private view for the press tonight at 7 o'clock. John General Manager Albert G. Pulver will give an exhibition of putting. Jack Peterson is the professional in charge. The course is the most elaborate of all hotels in the country.

John R. Torgan, the Irish professional, will have charge of the indoor school of the Evergreen Golf club at 31st street and Western avenue. It will be opened next month and will contain practice nets and a nine hole putting course.

The Flamingo Golf club is planning to establish itself as a membership club, with dues of $100 a year. At this figure the club can fill its roster easily.

The Lincoln Park Golf club held its annual trophy dinner at the Sheraton-Crest hotel. A large number of the members attended. President J. S. Copeland presided and presented the trophies to the winners in both the men's and the women's divisions. The club this year distributed the largest number of prizes on record.

H. G. Bonwell is the new champion of the Birchwood Country club. In the final round of the match, which was staged at Ridgemoor, Bonwell defeated Fred W. Lister, 2 and 1, at thirty-six holes.

Advantages of Cloth Gloves.
NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Although one always associates gloves with leather, that being the material from which they are most commonly made, and from which they were originally fashioned, there are a certain number of gloves manufactured of fabric which are not outside the pale of good style. These cloth gloves are made of a material called chambray, which has no more relation to the rare mountain animal than has the chambray.

leather. It is almost exclusively a gray fabric when used for men's gloves. A chambray of double weight, called duplex, makes a warmer fabric glove and a better wearing one. The chief advantage of a cloth glove is its lower purchasing price, and the fact that it washes easily, which, of course, is true of such leathers. It is used more in the fall and spring, when warmth less than a protection from dirt is the object in view. For the man who uses a pair of gloves as an excuse to have a beautiful piece of leather about his person the fabric glove means nothing.

FASHIONOTES.

We have received quite a number of questions lately regarding evening wear, in its various aspects. One of the commonest regards the wearing of the white or black vest, with tuxedo. For the benefit of any who are in doubt we will again state that with a tuxedo either a white pique or black silk waistcoat is worn, one being more formal than the other. With either one a black bow tie is always worn. The white vest is often double breasted, but the black silk is more often single breasted.

One reader was doubtful as to whether black or white studs were to be worn with tuxedo and white waistcoat. Again the answer is either. Black enamel makes an attractive tuxedo set, or black mother of pearl.

Tommy, a live wire, received C in department his first month in school. His mother felt about it and reproached him.

"Why, Tommy," she said, "just look at your report card! Your teacher only gave you C in department."

"O, for goodness sake," returned the small boy, disgustedly, "she must have writ it wrong."

Bobbie and his sister had been out playing and had come into the house in search of something to eat. Bobbie, seeing a lovely apple, picked it up and began eating it.

His sister admonished him, saying, "Bobbie, if you were polite you would have said, 'Here, sis, you take this and I'll find something else.'"

Bobbie answered, "And if you were polite you would have said, 'No, thanks, Bobbie, you keep it.' So I would have got it anyway, and I'm too hungry to waste that time."

Madge, who is afraid of dogs, began to scream the other day when she saw one approaching her.

"The small owner of the dog was not far behind, so he called the dog to him. Then, catching up to Madge, he remarked: 'You don't need to be afraid of Rover, 'cause he knows when to let a bite alone.'"

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Jerusalem Artichokes.

For those who care for the exquisite flavors among the tubers and root vegetables in general—flavors so greatly dependent on high class cooking—the Jerusalem-artichoke, or what the French call topinambour and use so much, is a boon. It is excellent in the "au gratin" fashion, and also in a cream-soup. It should be cooked in but little water first in making either of these dishes, and the best way to insure its gentle cooking is to use half milk and half water. If you boil this mixture hard it boils over, and that is highly undesirable.

Of course, the careful cook rarely gets the past under the gas flame chuck up with boiled over liquids, and if this misadventure happens she instantly rises off, because this is a case truly where a stitch in time saves nine. Because the surface is so knotty, I have found it best to brush the artichoke, drop it into boiling water for from five to ten minutes until the skin will rub off, and then I slice it and cook it in a tiny amount of water over a bit of fire. It may then be mashed, seasoned lightly, added to a thin white sauce, and served as a soup. A reduced vegetable stock is excellent seasoning for this.

On prepare a thicker white sauce, put this with the cooked slices of Jerusalem artichoke, and with a little grated cheese in layers, and bake in the oven until it puffs.

The French nearly always use a little nutmeg to season their topinambour.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Offers a Story.

"We have a small coal range, used only a short time, because we are planning to move into our new home. I should be glad to give it to some one in need who can call for it on the northwest side of the city."

If this is one of the things you need and haven't been able to afford, write in to D. E. H., and your application will be considered.

Books to Give.

"I have a full set of Ouida, also a lot of magazines and some of George Eliot's works, which I will be glad to give to some one who cares to have them and will call."

A remarkable opportunity for some book work—this generous offer.

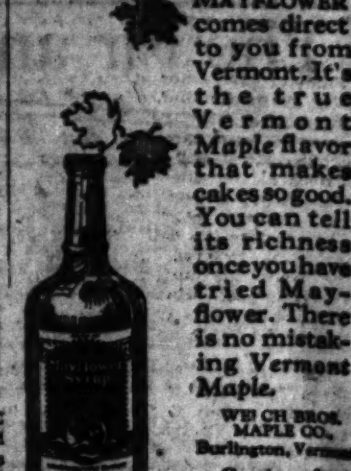

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MOTHER: AS A RULE THE healthy person who feels stupid and wants an unusual amount of sleep is suffering from lack of exercise and torpid digestion. Eight to nine hours are enough for the normal person. Twelve hours too much to give, unless one is a semi-invalid. I will be only too glad to send you some exercises to help you recover pep and energy. Send stamped, addressed envelope, and ask for "My Youth Preservers." After you have done them every morning for a month, you will want to get up and go to catch the gold in the month of the morning."

BILLY: I AGREE WITH YOU that an extremely heavy head of long hair is not the great asset it was once considered. It is difficult to dress for smart occasions. And it is intensely difficult to get hats to sit well upon it. I should have no hesitancy in sacrificing a foot or so of it. In fact, nowadays hairdressing advises that much more can be done with a not too abundantly treasured scalp.

Winners to Precede Bachelor-Benedick

Will Meet Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson of 1431 Astor street are planning a dinner for next Wednesday evening preceding the bachelors and bachelorettes ball, which will take place at the Casino. Miss Elizabeth Hinde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde of 1934 Astor street, will have the honor of giving a dinner for the bachelors at the same place. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pickett Wilhite of 222 Delaware place also will give a dinner for the bachelorettes at the Casino. Mrs. Hinde has received an invitation to the dinner, the custom of inviting a guest of honor, which always caused disappointment to those who weren't invited, having been discontinued.

Mrs. Lavett Thompson and Miss Thompson of 220 East Walton street are giving a dinner to the bachelorettes at the Casino. There will be 15 guests.

Mr. Arthur Ryerson will arrive at the Casino from his country residence at Cooperstown, N. Y., the day after tomorrow. He will be accompanied by Thomas W. Hinde of Boston, for whom she has a buffet luncheon Sunday afternoon, 2700 Lake View avenue. Mrs. Ryerson will be Mrs. Hinde's guest of honor of Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis L. McArthur of 100 West boulevard are moving next to an apartment at 220 East Walton street.

Mr. Arthur T. Alden of 100 East Madison avenue, who is now in New York, will remain there indefinitely. He will be joined by his wife, Mrs. Alden, who is in Chicago on business.

Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, is visiting with her mother, Mrs. Lathrop, and will be in Chicago until after Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Olive Rinnells of 1825 Broadway and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wheeler of Lake Forest are among the Chicagoans at White Sulphur Springs this week.

Mr. Charles Hubbard of Winnetka is on a "Chinese Temple and Garden" at the Fortnightly this evening. Theodore A. Shaw Jr., Mrs. William S. Blair, Mrs. William S. Blair, Mrs. William S. Blair, and Mrs. William S. Blair are among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Dixon, president of the club, will be the guests of honor at the 25th anniversary of the club.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: What Does Fawthaw Know About Kisses?

HELPS CLUB

By Doris Blake

Is marriage slavery?

Just raise that question at any gathering of women and see what happens! The implication is enough to fan the flames.

Say: "Marriage is slavery," and to the last "slave" she rises, waving a marriage certificate in her right hand to prove that slavery or no slavery, every woman loves a master.

Paradoxically we find some of them waving a certificate in both hands, the left for the departed, the right for the more recent acquisition—vociferously calling the institution into which no one has forced them—as an ignoble market where the illicit trafficking of poor, downtrodden creatures goes on with the sanction of law and clergy.

All of which proves that the institution has nothing to do with the case.

We women are nothing if not a truly comical set. There arises one in our midst, twice wed, wife of a millionaire. From our modest outlook, she seems to have a fairly good time of it traveling about, getting her picture taken, and there with snappy clothes, and a neat string of pearls, she makes a few remarks to the effect that marriage is akin to the work of the old galley propellers and she is taken seriously. No wonder men accuse us of having no sense of humor. It is possible we lose it when we are sold into bondage.

One turns with a bit of relief to the confession made by Elizabeth Marbury, author and playwright, representative of international reputation, leader in woman's affairs, and one who would assuredly be judged a successful example of bachelor womanhood. In her memoirs appearing in a current weekly, she confides:

"The reason I never married is that I can honestly say I never had a really good offer. The best was annulled. I attracted all the ladies ducks that were limping about. I was the wife of the weeklings. The youths who trailed me were poor affairs, as a rule; and, to prove that my estimate of them was correct, not one in after life ever demonstrated any conspicuous accomplishment."

That does not resign a woman to a place outside the slave mart, Miss Marbury's advice continues:

"I firmly believe that every woman should marry if it is humanly possible. Her one indisputable field of usefulness is in the bearing and raising of children. This is the end for which God intended her. I wish that before any girl decides against matrimony on general principles she would come to see me subject upon which my advice would be of benefit."

"If a woman through her own conduct, reacts against marriage, she will find, provided she lives long enough, that all through life, at best, she is only a misfit. She may live contentedly and even accomplish great things. Her influence may be of great service to the world. Nevertheless, she will have missed the normal expression of all these things within her clamoring for utterance. Her natural territory is her home, even if it is only a tiny flat. If the bearing of children has legitimately been denied her, she can prove herself a great helpmeet to her husband; and if she is more richly endowed in vision and in capacity than he, she can prefigure and mother him and be a silent influence in making a good man better and a bad man less evil."

So, there you are. It's always either way you take it. If you only want to startle your hearers, ask: "Which kind of slave would you rather be?"

GOOP DIALOGUES

A Daily Lesson in Manners for Children

(Copyright, 1935, By The Chicago Tribune.)

What do you say before you go?

I say Good-By.

And leave them so?

I say, "I've had a pleasant visit."

That's not the way the Goops do, is it?

They leave without a single word.

Yes, Goops are perfectly absurd!

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Against the Rules.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 18 and considered a good looking blonde. There is one thing I would like to know. I have been going out with a young man for about three months and I have grown to love him and often tell him so and I try hard to win his love, but he never tells me if he loves me or not or even if he cares for me or not, yet he meets me every Sunday and takes me out for a nice time and treats me really and writes me letters, but never does express his love for me. Now this has got me worried. I am thinking of giving this man up forever.

"Please give me your opinion as I am a young girl and this is my first love affair."

Again I see the great mistake—the girl who wears her heart on her sleeve. Why do you girls do that? Don't you know it is not in the rules of winning a man? You must not tell a man you love him—until you know beyond a doubt that he cares mightily for you—after he has told you so or at least asks if you love him.

Black Satin Edition of the General Utility Frock

By Wang Linnet Hinde

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It was a brilliant idea to create a general utility frock for the girl of college age. Something standardized like a young man's business suit was needed, and it was invented. A certain Fifth Avenue house got the credit when it first appeared about two years ago, and now we can pick up half a dozen delightful variations in a morning's tour about town. Premet gave us two French editions this year, a spring and a fall.

By its imperious collar and cuffs in Buster Brown style we know it in particular, and by its atmosphere of unadorned naïveté we know it in general. This year it takes to long, slim sleeves and a row of buttons down the front of the waist. There is a belt, or the suggestion of a belt, and in some charming imports, a slot pocket about the belt at the left and another below, at the right, from which a keen colored handkerchief is pulled.

Black satin is used in the model on view today, made with a tiered skirt and a blouse that buttons with dull silver balls. A version worn by a girl lurching at Sherry's was built of black silk, with collar and cuffs of quilted looking stuff edged with organza. In the same room another development of the idea in blue tulle had collar and cuffs of organza bound in contrasting colors. Varcolored organza folds attached to the edge of collar and cuffs are new and fetching.

Hard on the Host.

One evening my husband and I were invited to have dinner at a friend's. During the evening the conversation drifted into telling stories and joking about how useless some men are around the home.

My husband said: "Yes do you know some home-ade have to call in an electrician when a fuse blows out?"

Our hostess giggled and replied: "That is what my husband did this morning."

Of course, we all laughed but I wished that word "bonehead" had been omitted.

Well, She Did.

I had been married about six months when my husband and I quarreled. He left for work and I sat down and cried.

I heard footsteps. Thinking it was my husband, I quickly stepped to the door, thinking that when he opened it I would throw my arms around him and give him a kiss.

Well I did. Clinging to him, I noticed he tried to get away from me, but I supposed he was pained. Finally he did succeed, and who do you suppose it was? The new preacher!

day since Nov. 10. Best heavy butchers averaging 2500 lbs the mid to partners at 11.40, the top of the market. All classes of buyers showed a preference for better grades, especially heavy butchers. Closing trade was best of the day, with about 1,400 of the 11,000 fresh and "steak", offerings left in the pen.

Lamb Trade Steady.

After a strong to the higher opening trade, market reacted and closed weak to a shade lower than general selling Wednesday. Early top at 11.50 stands 10c above midweek, but shows no decline since previous Thursday, being within 10c of the lowest point of the year. Large local operators were bearish, causing the sudden reaction after outside demand was partly satisfied. Aged sheep were scarce and unchanged. Feeders sold slowly at week to lower prices, a few good kinds bringing $11.75@12.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 4,500 hogs, and 1,500 sheep, against 4,123 cattle, 12,744 hogs, and 1,520 sheep the corresponding Friday a year ago.

Hornsby Comes to Cubs in Big Deal with St. Louis Cards, and Gleason Is Signed as Killefer's Assistant

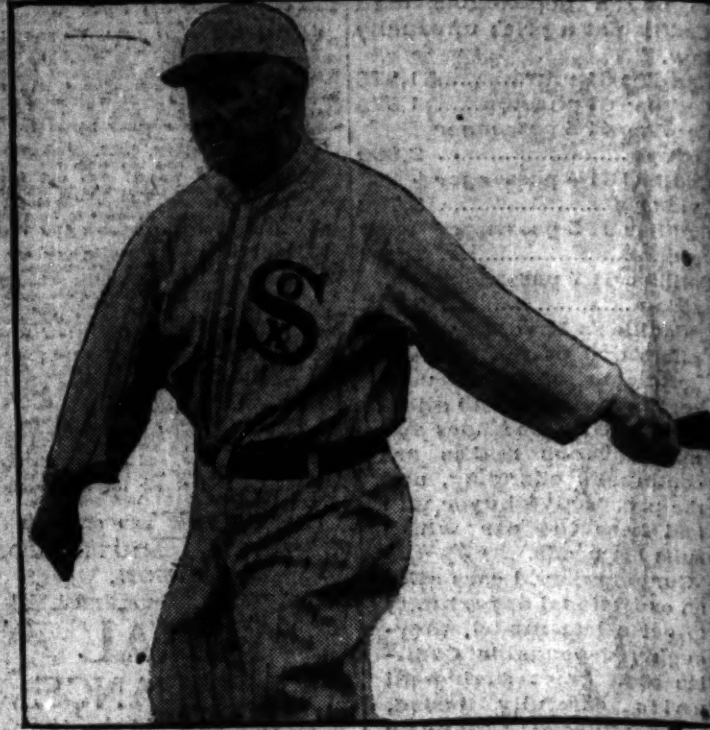

STUDENT BOOKED IN GLAND HOLDUP. Earl English, University of Chicago youth charged with mayhem and perjury in connection with assault upon Charles Ream, is questioned by Detective Thomas Smith (at right). (Story on page one.)

NEW KEYSTONE SACK GUARD FOR CUBS. Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman of St. Louis Cardinals, comes to north side in trade in which five Bears, and $100,000 figure. (Story on page seventeen.)

BACK HOME. Charlie Hollocher, Cubs' shortstop, who goes to St. Louis Cardinals. (Story on page seventeen.)

FROM SOUTH TO NORTH SIDE. William "Kid" Gleason is signed by Cubs as right hand man for Manager Bill Killefer. The "Kid," it is said, will coach pitchers. (Story on page seventeen.)

LIMBER'G UP FOR CORNHUSKERS. Syracuse university's powerful eleven stopped over in Chicago yesterday en route to Lincoln, Nebraska. The easterners ran through snappy signal drill at Stagg field. (Story on page eighteen.)

OLD AGE'S VICTIM. Mrs. Jantja Smith, 101 years old, is dead. (Story on page ten.)

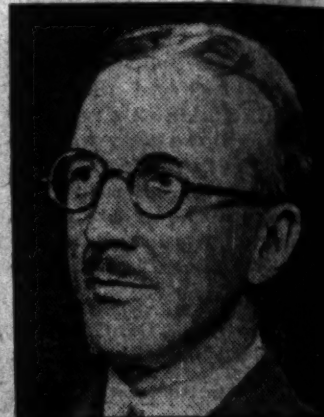

"EARTHLY MOTHER." Miriam Coughlin takes role in pageant given at Loyola university. (Story on page ten.)

GOT BOOZE. John A. Chapman, broker, testifies in Grommes & Ulrich case. (Story on page six.)

HITS ANDREWS. Testimony of Albert Freeman (above) involves former dry chief in booze deal. (Story on page six.)

STUDENTS PAY TRIBUTE TO RETIRING TEACHER. Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hornbaker are cheered by students upon their visit to the Goodrich school. Mrs. Hornbaker was a teacher there for many years. Her husband, also a teacher, won comment last year when his transfer from principalship of Smyth school brought protests from students, parents and alumni. (Story on page six.)

PROPOSED WIDENING OF MICHIGAN AVENUE. Resolution calling for the widening of Michigan avenue eight feet, from Roosevelt road to Randolph street, at an estimated cost of $77,000 is placed before the South Park board. Photo taken at Park Row, looking north, shows where widening (marked by white line) would take place. (Story on page six.)

ROYALTY ATTENDS WEDDING. A social event of outstanding importance to English folk recently, was the marriage of Princess Maud and Lord Carnegie at Guards' chapel, Wellington barracks. Standing beside the bride and groom are the King, and the Earl of Galloway, and on the right are the Queen, Queen Maud of Norway, Prince of Wales, Duke and Duchess of York and Princess Victoria. COOLIDGE COOL TO NEW ALIEN CREDIT SCHEME

New Drive On to Put U. S. in League.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—(Special.)—While the pro-league, international bankers and agrarian interests are maneuvering to project the United States into European affairs, President Coolidge has thrown a wet blanket on the latest and boldest credit extension proposal.

It was stated officially at the White House today that the President is opposed to the use of the $187,000,000 German property held by the alien property custodian as a basis for credit to finance exports of American products to Germany.

The President, not only does not regard such action which has been urged at various times during the past two or three years as feasible, but is of the opinion that there is ample credit available through regular banking channels.

Credit Not Sound—Meyer.
In this view the President accepts the judgment of Eugene Meyer Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, who has opposed various proposals that the government aid financing exports of farm products to Europe.

Meyer believes that the lack of credit for a part of the world from European countries is due to exchange uncertainties and not to inability to obtain ordinary credit.

Another scheme on which the President also looks with disfavor is that the finance corporation advance $100,000,000 to finance purchases of American wheat and other food products by Germany to relieve the rampant food shortage in that country. Relief measures it undertakes to be financed by outright appropriation, the President holds. A credit extension, he is convinced, would be unsound.

Real Aim of Propaganda.
The proposal of a $150,000,000 credit extension has been made by Gray, one of the American farm bureau leaders, now in Europe with a delegation gathering material for the League of Nations. A big drive is to be made to get the farmers to demand a large credit extension to Germany to purchase wheat; the effect of which would be to enhance the price of wheat.

The charge is heard in some quarters that the farm bureau federation is used to promote the schemes of the internationalists to involve us to an extent that will cause us to lose the league of nations. The farm bureau leaders are behind a plan to have a survey of European conditions which had been introduced previously by J. P. Morgan and other international bankers.

Real Scheme Is Involved.
The League of Nations Nonpartisan commission appears to be working in cooperation with Edward Bok's $100,000,000 award committee.

The plan is disclosed by a letter received from the Bok prize competitors, which W. Haruch, chairman of the information bureau, has received.

The same was referred to us by the League of Nations Nonpartisan commission for the prize offered for the world peace, and if there are very anxious to cooperate in any possible toward this end, we are offered to send to all applicants this prize such literature as they desire, that would give them knowledge of international peace and their solution.

Real Lots of Pamphlets.
The plan, enclosing a price list of our books and also a list of books on the subject of world peace, and if there are very anxious to cooperate in any possible toward this end, we are offered to send to all applicants this prize such literature as they desire, that would give them knowledge of international peace and their solution.
